Tremors Ravage 500-Mile Area; 2 Die in Helena

Buildings Weakened by 500 Tremors in 19 Days Are Hit.

Panic Threatens Montana Capital

Damage Now Estimated at $5,000,000; Residents Flee.

By the Associated Press.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 31.—An earthquake which tore at an area 500 miles wide centered upon Helena today, killing at least two persons and injuring scores. Several buildings in this capital city of 12,000, already weakened by more than 500 earth shocks in 19 days, shuddered and collapsed.

The possibility of total losses in Helena exceeding $5,000,000 was seen in reports the tremors might have wrought more extensive damage than the rolling jolts of October 18. Damage then was placed at $2,500,000.

Residents who fled their homes were greeted by wintry winds and near-zero temperatures which threatened to go under last night's 4-below minimum.

Other Cities Shaken.

Striking with a rumble shortly before noon, the severe tremor shook the city for 19 seconds, and sent its quiver through mountainous western Montana, where it rumbled under Butte, Great Falls and Anaconda.

The movement was felt 500 miles to the west at Spokane, Wash., and extended as far north, into Canada at Calgary and Lethbridge, Alta. Only slight, however, was the force in cities outside stricken Helena.

Today's dead brought the earthquake toll to seven, five having died previously from injuries or nervous shock.

Ed O'Brien, 27, of Salt Lake City, was injured fatally shortly before noon when a falling smokestack caught him as it crashed into a brewery where he was doing repair work.

An unidentified man, working with O'Brien, was killed on the spot.

Hospitals Damaged.

For a time hysteria threatened. Families, gathering up heavy clothing and blankets, crowded into motor cars and set out in search of safety. They gathered on the roads, in relief shelters and park areas.

Injured were rushed to hospitals from many parts of the city. A few workmen were reported seriously hurt when thrown from scaffolding. Most of the quake patients were injured only slightly.

The problem of caring for the injured was made greater because hospitals themselves were damaged. St. John's Hospital was evacuated.

Nurses hurried from room to room in both St. John's and St. Peter's hospitals striving to quiet terrified patients.

Coming amid efforts to speed rehabilitation and repairs, the tremors—beginning at 11:37 a. m., Mountain standard time (1:37 p. m., E. S. T.)—struck momentary terror in Helena.

Brown Heads Parade as 15 Bands, 50 Floats Swing Into Line.

Crowds were still gathering as the city's annual Halloween parade got under way along Constitution avenue from Fourth street northwest last night, and Board of Trade officials estimated that at their peak the spectators might total more than 100,000.

First to swing into the avenue in the parade was Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of Metropolitan Police, and behind him came Army men forming a guard of honor for the king and queen of the celebration, Arch McDonald and Miss Jeannette Williams.

Fifty floats and 15 bands had gathered for the parade. Marchers in masques and uniforms were counted in the hundreds.

The sky was dark and smudged with gray clouds that might, the Weather Bureau said, bring rain today, but the forecasters felt sure the showers would hold off for the duration of the parade. Earlier, as the day's weather loomed dubious, Board of Trade officials had said rain would mean postponement of the parade until tonight.

The first crowds were a few score Government workers who hadn't bothered to go home and who collected at Constitution avenue and Fourth street, where the long lines were to form. Choicer places behind the Halloween throne and reviewing stand on Constitution avenue, between Fifteenth and Six-

Jury Acquits Col. Cooper In Bank Case

Verdict Ends Two-Year Fight Over Transfer of $48,000

Decision Made Quickly Despite Prosecution's Sharp Attack.

Acquittal by a District Supreme Court jury yesterday ended victoriously the two-year fight of Col. Wade H. Cooper to clear his name.

The wrinkled defendant smiled broadly and borrowed a cigarette from a friend after he was exonerated on charges of misappropriating $48,000 from the Commercial National Bank, of which he was president.

The jury of ten men and two women was out two hours and ten minutes. Most of that time was spent at lunch.

When the jurors filed into the hushed courtroom a clerk asked the foreman:

"What say you as to the guilt or innocence of Wade H. Cooper?"

"Not guilty," the foreman responded.

"Not guilty on all four counts?"

"Yes, not guilty."

Cooper Greets Jurors.

As friends crowded around to congratulate the banker a court attendant demanded order. Cooper then stepped out of the chamber and shook hands with the jurors.

"It was a righteous verdict," the banker told reporters. "I expected it all along."

Both Cooper and his chief counsel, William E. Leahy, complimented Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue on his "fair and impartial" charge to the jury.

No Further Prosecution.

"I'm not quite sure," he commented, "whether there are any other charges still pending, but if there are they'll be nolled."

Had he been convicted Cooper would have been subject to a jail sentence of two to ten years on each of the four counts in the indictment.

Justice O'Dohoghue instructed the jury that to find the defendant guilty it must be convinced he wilfully misapplied the bank's funds with intent to defraud.

He cautioned the jurors to disregard anything they had read in the newspapers. The defendant, he warned, should not be affected by any of the "ruinous things which have happened in the banking and financial world" since 1931 when his misconduct was alleged to have occurred.

Defense Is Elated.

"You are not to judge him by hindsight," O'Donoghue said. "Nor is he to be judged in the light of events which have occurred since the date of the charges in the indictment."

Cooper and Leahy were obviously elated by the manner in which the judge charged the jury.

Sharp arguments to the jury were marked by Goldstein's accusation that Cooper did not hesitate to "steal" and by Leahy's insistence his client had been made the "goat" in the tangled affairs of the Commercial and its affiliate, the Continental Trust Co.

The prosecutor flailed the air with his arms as he charged:

"They'll say, 'Here is a man worth a million dollars—would he steal $20,000?' I don't know why he would, but he did. I don't know why rich men grab for more.

"Mr. Cooper was hungry for it and he got it. It was the prettiest piece of conversion ever to ap-

N. Y. Faithful Greet Walker With Hysteria

Exiled Ex-Mayor and Wife Narrowly Escape Injury in Pier Crush.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 31.—Amid tumultous and riotous scenes of welcome by the Broadway faithful, James J. Walker, stangely nervous and uncertain, came back from exile today to the town he deserted under fire three years ago.

The trip down the bay of the liner Manhattan, which brought Walker and his wife, the former Betty Compton of the stage, over from Europe, was a noisy triumphal procession that verged into hysterical mob scenes at the Chelsea piers.

The few police on the pier were inadequate to hold the crowd. The terrific jam around Walker's stateroom on the Manhattan required the combined efforts of three husky bodyguards, five policemen, a police captain and ship line officials to extricate them and push them up a back companionway.

The former mayor and his wife narrowly escaped injury as they stepped from the gangplank to the pier. So great was the pressure of the crowd that the straining arms of seamen gave way and a score of men and women were hurled down the gangway steps to the pier floor. None, apparently, was seriously hurt.

Several women were trampled in a rush of several thousand outside

Paris, Oct 31 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Dr. Sylvain Levi, 72, noted French historian and orientalist and president of the Alliance Isaelite Universelle, died suddenly today.

Dr. Levi was born in Paris March 28, 1863. He had been on the faculty of the College of France since 1894 and with the Eccole des Hautes Etudes since 1885, at both of which schools he occupied the chair of sanscrit.

At the Peace Conference at Versailles Dr. Levi, representing French Jewry, took a vigorous stand against against Palestine as a Jewish national home.

Chatmoss Wins 3-Horse Race To Pay Off $7

Five Out of 8 Scratched in Feature Run at Pimlico Opening.

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, Md., Oct. 31.—Ancient Pimlico, steeped in tradition and where one feels that the ghost of the "gay nineties" must gather each night and bet on phantom races, opened creaking doors to modern fans today—and I believe I'm making a flattering estimate when I place the crowd at 6,000. Mother Nature failed to step up to the aid of track officials and sent a damp, drizzly day that was not alluring for supporters of the sport of kings and plebeians.

And the heavy, sticky track fairly wrecked the feature race. What had appeared in the overnight entries as a contest due to provide thrills aplenty looked as if an old hen had been at work this afternoon when scratching reduced the starters from eight to three.

In the abbreviated field that answered the bugle call for the Timonium Claiming Stakes, Chatmoss proved the winner by the uninteresting margin of five lengths. Silent Shot was second by some 15 lengths, with Round Table the trailer.

About the only excitement occurred before Starter Milton sent the field away. Round Table did everything but break down the Officers told the court Livingston had been in trouble before over attacks on women and children.

Landon Fails To Aid Relief, Hopkins Says

Balanced State Budget Held Due to Denial of FERA Funds.

Also Assails Talmadge; Ickes Caustic as to Gen. Johnson.

By Felix Bruner.

Harry L. Hopkins, New Deal relief boss, lashed out yesterday at Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, who is frequently mentioned as an outstanding possibility for the Republican nomination for President.

Asked at his press conference about conditions in Kansas, where much has been made of the fact that the State has a balanced budget, Hopkins said:

"The State of Kansas has never put up a thin dime for unemployment relief and so far as I know the Governor has never made an effort to raise any money. He has even been after me for money to keep his schools going.

"That's the way he balances his budget."

In connection with the Government works-relief program States have been expected to share part of the cost and to care for unemployables. States have responded in most instances with varying percentages of relief costs.

Ickes Joins In.

Yesterday was a field day for Hopkins and Secretary Ickes, the two principal directors of the works program, who took the opportunity offered at their press conferences to attack their enemies. Among those who came in for oral chastisement were Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, Governor Talmadge of Georgia, the State administration in Ohio and even the Hoover Administration.

Johnson, in one of his recent newspaper columns, referred to the works program as a "flop," used the same term in describing Ickes, and declared that Army engineers should have been put in charge of the job in the first place.

"My unexpurgated opinion of Johnson might be interesting, but where could I express it?" Ickes said.

"Mental Saddle Sores"

"His principal objection seemed to be that the President had not turned PWA over to the Army engineers for administration. That is a bit naive for a blunt-spoken cavalryman. As a matter of fact, his objection was not that we had not turned over PWA to the Army engineers but that we had not turned it over to a certain ex-cavalry officer.

"The trouble with the general is that since he was bucked out of the saddle at NRA he is suffering from mental saddle sores."

Hopkins followed up by commenting that Johnson's description of the works program as a "flop" was "all damned nonsense." He added that Johnson's insistence that he is for President Roosevelt and against the New Deal "sounds cock-eyed."

Referring to Johnson's recent

Race Track Official To Face Grand Jury

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 31 (AP).—State's Attorney William R. McCabe of Will County today issued a subpena for Christopher J. Fitzgerald, steward representing the Illinois Racing Commission at horse race tracks in the Chicago district, to appear before a grand jury Monday for investigation of alleged "irregular practices" at Lincoln Fields track, near Crete.

McCabe said he had received complaints from several horse owners that racing at Lincoln Fields, where Fitzgerald was an official, was not operated to the best interests of the public. "I was informed that often owners were required to enter horses even when the animals were not in shape to race, simply to make up a field," McCabe said. "I was told that big fields were artificially created for the second and third races many days to build up the daily double take."

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Harar, Ethiopia, Oct. 31.—Fighting is continuing on the Southern front, according to military reports by runner today, but the widely heralded Ethiopian major offensive appears not to have made much headway.

Reinforcements have been sent to the fortified positions of Gorahai, which still are in Ethiopian hands, but there are no reports of major victories over the invading columns from Italian Somaliland. Indications at provincial headquarters are that the "big offensive" collapsed after minor reversals far to the south and east of Jijiga.

[The Havas News Agency reported more than 3,500 Ethiopians were killed and wounded in fierce fighting on the southern Ogaden front. The heaviest Ethiopian casualties were near Ualual, where Dedjazmatch Abde Kimael, commanding Emperor Haile Selassie's forces, was reported killed. The Italians were said to be solidly entrenched, supported by field artillery and tanks.—Editor's Note.]

Meanwhile, minor chieftains keep insisting that Dedjazmatch Nassibu, commander of the 350,000 troops on the southern front, launch a real offensive, while foreign advisers, including the Turkish general, Wahib Pasha, insist upon a continuation of guerrilla tactics until the Italians are drawn farther inland.

Colin Alexander Mackenzie, British missionary, who has been in refuge in the British consulate here, with his wife, Mollie, has decided to return to his post in Chercher province at Asba Tafari. This village would be directly in front of the Italians if they advance through Bale province and attempt to reach Hawash at the base of the escarpment of the Addis Ababa plateau.

Another British missionary, Miss Doris Benson, also will return to Asba Tafari. She reached here after spending two months in Hargeisa, British Somaliland.

The missionaries, who are well acquainted with the country and speak native dialects, are ready to believe there never will be any extensive fighting on the southern

Il Duce Proclaims An Economic Siege

Orders Food Prices Cut and Butcher Shops to Be Curtailed.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Oct. 31.—Boisterous bands of students threatened establishments they believed to be British tonight as Benito Mussolini invoked a state of "economic siege" for all Italy.

After howling "Down with England" in a demonstration before the British Embassy until gendarmes drove them away, the students descended after dark on business and amusement places. They smashed glass, hoisted effigies of Emperor Haile Selassie and shouted against "foreigners" until police dispersed them.

A big lamp hanging in front of a tearoom on the Via Sistina, operated by Italians but displaying English signs, was broken, and a map of Aduwa was pasted on the window.

200 Start for Club.

Then 200 students started for the Embassy Night Club, an English-American establishment, but the management, forewarned, rolled down iron shutters before the crowd arrived.

The students next started for the British Consulate, on the Piazza Dispagna, but police were there and chased them away.

Glass in a picture of vaudeville girls at the "Florida" dance hall, where the performers are foreigners, was smashed and the youths cried: "We don't want foreigners."

During the afternoon there was a similar demonstration in front of a British-owned drug store. There was no damage, but the proprietor closed the store.

British Embassy Patrolled.

Dozens of police and carabinieri in their claw-hammer coats and cocked hats patrolled the vicinity of the British Embassy, scene of a former demonstration.

Reserves were held for emergency and officers stationed at strategic points to signal the approach of demonstrators.

The embassy demonstration was started by students marching home after hearing Il Duce's denunciation of sanctions at the inauguration of the new University of Rome.

They waved placards denouncing Great Britain and shouted "down

Burns on Halloween Fatal to 2 Children

Reading, Pa., Oct. 31 (AP).—A papier mache jack o'lantern at a gay Halloween party and a kitchen stove caused the deaths of two children today.

Nazis Sentence 7 for Talking Politics During 'Red' Broadcast

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Oct. 31 (AP).—Seven prison sentences today brought home to Germans the danger that lurks in the loudspeaker when it's tuned in on Moscow.

Two men in Wilhelmshaven were sentenced to four years in prison and five years' loss of citizenship for discussing politics while listening to a Moscow radio broadcast, and five friends who listened, too, received lesser terms.

All seven were charged with "plotting high treason." Some, authorities said, were Communists.

The Nazis, in their 2½ years in power, have waged a constant battle against the Moscow radio. They have taken measures all the way from removing Moscow designations from radio sets to local decrees forbidding listeners to tune in on the Soviet capital.

Police of Frankfort-on-Main led off with such measures early in the Nazi regime by warning Moscow radio listeners they were liable to taste the life of concentration camps, especially when groups of persons gathered around the loudspeakers.

The gravest danger, according to court decisions on the subject, is when whatever coming out of the speaker incites discussion.

Nazis who have been sentencing from 50 to 100 Communists monthly assert groups of Bolsheviks have been gathering about radios to get forbidden inspiration.

Authorities have sought to popularize small, cheap radios for working men—sets incapable of getting Moscow.

Forty-five men, described as mostly Communists, recently were sentenced for treason in Essen, heart of the Reich's industrial district, the sentences ranging from 6 to 21 months. Fifty-five others are awaiting trial.

One Communist, Albert Kaiser, a former Reichstag deputy, is to be beheaded.

Tomorrow the German school of politics will open an anti-Communist seminar, which it claims is the first of its kind to be given by such a school.

League, Meeting on Sanctions, Told Italy Seeks Peace Talk

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Geneva, Oct. 31.—The League of Nations' general staff took swift note tonight of an overwhelming majority of states ready to begin an economic blockade of Italy while a spokesman for that warring power said "Italy is ready to negotiate" for peace.

In a brief meeting, statesmen of the 52 members which make up the Geneva general staff looked at the record of rapid response on collective action to end the Ethiopian war and turned to the task of clearing away sanction enforcement difficulties before fixing the date on which economic siege actually will begin.

French and British delegations collaborated on preparation of a statement to be presented tomorrow, either by Premier Pierre Laval or Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary, to "clear the air" on the subject of a possible peace settlement.

It was known Premier Mussolini's suggestions so far have been entirely unacceptable to the British. But Baron Pompeo Aloisi, chief envoy of Il Duce, is due here tomorrow, and the spokesman who today expressed Italy's willingness "to negotiate" referred to his visit.

British circles remained pessimistic on the chances of any concrete proposals reaching the state of serious negotiation in the near future.

Tonight's meeting of the committee of 52 was opened by Dr. Augusto Vasconcelos, of Portugal, chairman. He announced 47 states had accepted financial sanctions and 46 economic measures, with 50 enrolling in the general arms embargo on Italy.

He emphasized the fact that the United States, a non-member, imposed an arms embargo on belligerents before the League went into action. A second non-member state, Egypt, answered the League's sanctions query favorably today.

Vasconcelos also announced late sanctions by Ecuador, Haiti, Iran and Colombia. Paraguay's reply, saying the matter would be submitted to Parliament, was considered to be acceptance in principle. It also was taken to indicate Paraguay will cancel her notification of resigwith England," until police dispersed them.

Embassy officials said they knew nothing of the disorder, however, until servants informed them.

More Troops to Africa.

Il Duce pledged "implacable resistance" to sanctions. At the same time he pushed his war in Ethiopia, sent another shipload of troops to Africa and ordered a slight reduction in food prices, effective tomorrow.

Next week butcher shops throughout the country will begin Tuesday closings. On Wednesdays they will sell no beef, pork or veal.

To the students Mussolini shouted: "In the face of an economic siege for which the entire civilized world should have a sense of supreme shame; in the face of an experiment which is being made today for the first time against the Italian people, let it be said that we shall present the most implacable resistance in the firmest of our decisions."

Simple Life to Prevail.

Italy organized itself for the simple life. Housewives prepared for a house-to-house discipline. Through it, Mussolini relies upon them to cease using certain foreign products, reduce the consumption of imported goods and utilize things the sanctions may prevent Italy from selling abroad.

He set in motion his "corporative state," with its trade and industrial organizations, its monopolies and its collective buying system. Many products, such as coal, copper, zinc, nickel, wool, cotton and iron will be bought by central organizations or under a license system. A central organization for oil and cellulose products was being formed, and others were expected to follow.

Authorities said collective buying or supervision, which ensures state control, is broader and more effective than last year, when it was said to have applied to slightly more than half the 7,500,000,000 lire of imports.

Informed sources said Italy will "buy only fro mthose who buy from us." They asserted that persons in the countries applying sanctions who try to send into Italy products not on the sanctions list will find no market in Italy.

Scholastic Editors To Hold Conclave

Southern Group to Meet at Lexington.

Between You and Me

Administration's Dilemma in Kentucky; Democrats Split; 'Happy' Chandler's Grin.

By Raymond Clapper

NOT much is reaching the outside world about the fight over the governorship of Kentucky. Actually, in that election to be held Tuesday, the Roosevelt Administration is in danger of receiving a serious blow to its prestige.

If the Republicans elect a Governor next week in Kentucky, what they will do with that by way of preparing for 1936 is plenty. The psychological effect of losing the Kentucky governorship to the Republicans would be extremely serious for the Democratic Administration here. They would try to laugh it off, to explain that it was the result of a split inside the party, but nothing they could say would ease very much the impact of losing Kentucky on the mind of the average voter. To him it would be an indication of a turn in the tide more complete than he had supposed.

The fate of the Democratic candidate for Governor, "Happy" Chandler, is being tied up with the Roosevelt Administration in the final stages of the Kentucky campaign.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mnie Wrokers, was sent into Kentucky to campaign for the Democratic candidate. Lewis linked Chandler with the New Deal at Washington. "He stands," Lewis said, "for the upholding of the Administration of President Roosevelt." He called upon all friends of the Administration to "join in the overwhelming election of Hon. A. B. Chandler for Governor, which will in itself be a ringing indorsement of the policies of the greatest statesman of modern times, Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

Another campaigner is a former NRA executive, Miss Mary E. Hughes, who under Gen. Hugh Johnson was national organizer of the women's division of NRA. She is campaigning the State for "Happy" Chandler, declaring his election is necessary to insure Kentucky's support and cooperation with the Roosevelt Administration.

The danger is not that Mr. Roosevelt is unpopular in Kentucky. It is something else entirely. The present Democratic Governor of Kentucky is Ruby Laffoon, is a bitter enemy of the man who has been nominated as his successor. Gov. Laffoon backed another candidate, Thomas S. Rhea, his State roads commissioner, in the primary and lost. He refused to support Chandler for election, even declining to visit President Roosevelt's train on the recent westward trip to California when an attempt was made to arrange a harmony meeting aboard the Presidential special at Cincinnati. "Happy" Chandler appeared and received the Presidential blessing.

Now Democratic Governor Laffoon is speaking over the State attacking Democratic Candidate Chandler. Laffoon puts it bluntly from the stump: "I feel justified in asking the people not to support Mr. Chandler because he has not indorsed my administration. I am going to vote for all of the Democratic nominees except for him."

Rhea, Gov. Laffoon's defeated candidate for the nomination, as a member of the State highway commission, is also throwing knives at the Democratic candidate. He served public notice that any employe of the highway commission caught contributing to Chandler's campaign fund would be fired. He called employes of the department together for a talk and was reported to have warned them that "in spite of all of the talk, Chandler hasn't been elected yet."

"Happy" Chandler's speakers are denouncing the present Democratic Governor as roughly as if he were a Republican. Former Gov. Beckham, stumping the State for Chandler, declares in his speeches that "Chandler soon saw that the Laffoon administration was in control of the most corrupt lot of men who ever had influence in our State."

While this bitter factional fight goes on among the Democrats, the Republican candidate for Governor, King Swope, once a baby member of Congress here just after the war, is treading carefully, hoping to be the beneficiary of this family quarrel. He is jabbing at Chandler for inviting outsiders from Washington to come in and tell Kentucky how to vote. Also he is compelled to spend considerable time denying charges from Chandler that he has made a deal with Laffoon Democrats and has promised them jobs.

"Happy" Chandler, young lieutenant governor, is best known in Kentucky for his smile. When he appears at political meetings, the crowd calls out, "Come on, Happy, let's see you smile." Whereupon, Young Happy steps forward and grins. This grin is supposed to be worth thousands of votes in Kentucky—nobody seems to be able to explain just why, unless it is that in Kentucky folks are just naturally agreeable and are easily pleased.

In the long, quiet evenings during the President's recent fishing cruise, two clubs grew up, a result of arguments over the day's fishing, which must have reminded President Roosevelt of the works relief arguments between Ickes and Hopkins.

In the alphabetical spirit of the New Deal, one club was known as the I. H. I. Club. It consisted of Secretary Ickes. The initials stand for the club's motto—"I hooked it."

The other club was the I. L. I Club—its motto being, "I landed it." This club consisted of Harry Hopkins, works progress administrator.

Farmers 'Indifferent' On Hog Control Issue

Italians Lose Heavily

London, Oct. 31.—Danakil Tribesmen have inflicted heavy losses on Italian columns withdrawing from Mussa Ali toward Aussa, seat of the Sultan of Aussa, the Exchange Telegraph reported tonight from Addis Ababa.

The Danakils, some of whom were armed with modern rifles by Emperor Haile Selassie, harassed the Italians continuously during the withdrawal through the rough desert country, where temperatures reach as much as 160 degrees (Fahrenheit) in the shade. Scores of Italian troops were killed in one ambush.

The Italians decided to abandon their Mussa Ali base because of fear of conflict with French interests, the correspondent said. Mussa Ali is on the edge of Frenchc Somaliland.

As soon as the Italians left the mountain the Danakils used it as a base to attack the retiring troops on whim "they inflicted severe casualties."

The Italians suffered terribly in the desert, the correspondent said. Danakils of the Assai Maira tribe outflanked them and attacked one big supply column in darkness. In the confusion the Italians were unable to use their machine guns. The tribesmen crept past sentries and filtered into the camp in large numbers before they were discovered. Then they fell on the Italians with swords and spears.

The moment the first wave of the Assai Mairas had attacked, with wild cries, other tribesmen stampeded the Italian camels and mules. The camel drivers were massacred and emasculated in accordance with the Danakil custom. The tribesmen captured considerable supplies, including camels and guns.

The correspondent says the movement of the Italians toward Aussa was believed linked with the general Italian drive in the north which envisages early occupation of Dessye, south of Makale. This would link up the Italian armies on the northern front. Coincident with the drive on Makale the Italian operations on the south would be speeded with a drive on Jijiga and Harar.

Another Village Seized

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Adigrat, Ethiopia, Oct. 31.—Trained native troops, beating a trail for the main advance of the Italian left column, occupied another village today and seized wells.

The town was Mai Uecc, several kilometers beyond Edaga Hamus. Italian officers immediately dubbed it "Mae West."

Sharp action was reported earlier from the southwest border of Eritrea, where Italians crossed the Setit River and drove back Ethiopians massed at Nlaghin.

After dispersing the enemy, the black shirts recrossed the stream and took up the defensive on their side.

Native troops of the northern forces have deployed tactically as far as Hauzien, half way to strategic Makale, and have taken the natural fortress of Amba Sion, 30 miles from that objective.

nation from the League, made at the height of the Chaco war.

The question of what will be done about unfulfilled contracts on which partial payments have been made is one of the problems to be worked out, beginning tomorrow.

Spanish Plan Adopted.

Today the committee of 18 adopted a Spanish proposal that any contracts with Italian firms which were fully paid up to October 19, the date on which sanctions were voted, might be fulfilled without abrogation of sanctions obligations.

League delegations conceded the potentialities of endless discussion of such details, but the British seemed optimistic of winding up the talk and fixing the actual enforcement date before Sunday.

It generally was expected November 15 would be the date.

Besides the so-called "incorrigibles," such as Austria, Hungary and Albania, it was pointed out only three League members not parties to the dispute have failed to at least accept the arms embargo. These are Bolivia, the Dominican Republic and Honduras.

200 at Hagerstown Start Work Today

Pangborn Park Project to Get Under Way.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 31.—One hundred men from relief rolls will start to work tomorrow on the Pangborn Park WPA project.

The park, in the north end of Hagerstown, will be located on land given the city by Thomas W. Pangborn, local industrialist. An athletic field, two lakes, one for winter sports, the other to be filled with fish, several tennis courts, and a soft ball field and gardens will be constructed.

Another hundred will begin tomorrow on soil erosion work in the Clearspring and Hancock areas.

A number of other smaller road projects and a painting project at Bellevue, the county home, were started this week.

500-Mile Area Hit by Tremors; 2 Die in Helena

Shocks Culminate Long Series; Damage Now $5,000,000.

...rushed into the streets in the hard hit downtown section. Women and children fled their homes, many children crying.

Bricks Rain on Streets.

Bricks toppled into the streets. Chimneys fell. Walls bulged.

Buildings, especially homes, which withstood the earlire shocks of October 12 and 16, and the intervening recurrent shocks which pushed the total past 500 tremors in 19 days, were generally in good condition tonight. City Engineer Oscar Baarson said:

"Most of th apparent new damage was to homes and other buildings which had been cracked and weakened by the previous shocks."

He reported further heavy damage at the Shrine Temple, the new high school, the Northern Pacific station, Mills Hall, and the gymnasium at Intermountain Union College.

The Montana Power Co. said its Natural Gas Service had not been interrupted. However, hundreds of calls to shut off the gas to prevent possible fires flooded the office.

Two electric feeder lines were swept to the ground by swaying telephone poles, but service was expected to be normal.

Damage to the Fort Harrison Veteran's Hospital, already weakened by former jolts, but kept in use to care for shock victims, caused evacuation of the institution tonight.

Disabled Veterans Moved.

Dr. H. C. Watts, veterans' administrator, entrained 90 hospitalized veterans for Walla Walla, Wash., at sundown. Others were sent there ten days ago. He said the power plant chimney was levelled and the plant shaken into disability. Yawning cracks came in hospital walls.

Twenty prisoners from the county jail were freed from their cells and guarded in nearby substantial buildings when plaster fell in the jail and steel plates and rods groaned.

Two men were injured at St. Mary's Catholic School. Beb J. Wagner, of Billings, and Sterrett Cram, of Helena, were thrown 20 feet from a scaffold. Their injuries are said to be serious.

Bernie Wagner, a young workman at the school, ran when he heard the shock at the school which "sounded like the boilers exploding." A bookcase fell on him and pinned him to the floor. He extricated himself and fled.

St. John's Hospital, filled to brimming by new patients, most of them suffering nervous shock, was emptied late today, and patients were taken by automobile as far as Deer Lodge, Butte, Missoula and other points outside the immediate quake zone.

Carroll College saw a portion of its main wall collapse. The Placer Hotel, headquarters for relief and emergency agents, cracked and groaned, and its occupants fled safely to the street.

New Yorkers Cheer Return of Walker

the pier shed when Walker's automoblie appeared. Behind a motorcycle escort, Walker was rushed uptown to his hotel, where a shouting, whistling crowd greeted him again.

Many smartly dressed men and women stood for more than an hour in a drizzling rain for a sight of "Goodtime Jimmy" and his wife.

Strong-armed bodyguards pounded an aisle through the crowds in the lobby to hustle the former Mayor and Mrs. Walker into an elevator.

"I'm going to bed," muttered Walker as he reached sanctuary.

Today's scenes were in sharp contrast to the September night in 1932, when Walker sailed without fanfare from New York after resigning as mayor at the height of a legislative investigation which brought startling disclosures of laxity in the administration of city affairs.

Under the grim prosecution of Samuel Seabury, the joint legislative committee unearthed the stories of the famous "tin box," of adverse influences in the police department, and outright allegations of graft in the Walker administration.

Walker abruptly handed in his resignation as the committee demanded, at hearings in Albany before Franklin D. Roosevelt, then Governor, that the mayor be ordered to step from office.

Walker shortly afterward left the United States, sick and haggard, to remain away until today.

Amid a welcoming hub-bub aboard the Manhattan, Walker said he had made no political arrangements, but left the door open to future public service.

Won't Say He Won't.

Speaking seriously, and with emphatic nods of his head, Walker declared:

"I don't want to say I wouldn't accept something if it turned up. I can't say what I might do a year or five years from now.

"Right now, though, all I wan are two seats on the aisle in New York."

"I hope to resume my practice of law in as quiet, peaceful and remunerative a way as I know.

"It's just 'Mister' Walker from now on."

Mrs. Walker, smart in a gray caracul coat and gray hat with a red feather, deliberately kept in the background.

"It's Jimmy's day,' she said. "I want him to have all of it."

2 Men End Lives.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Morgantown, W. Va., Oct. 31.—Two Monongalia County suicides were reported the same day. Officials said A. B. Spencer, 51, former district mine superintendent shot himself through the head in his upstairs sleeping room. Matthew C. Eddy, 65, former deputy sheriff, hanged himself in a tree on his farm at Cross Roads. Neither left notes of explanation.

Blast Fuse Saves Fish.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Parsons, W. Va., Oct. 31.—A burned out fuse is believed to have been the means of saving the lives of a large number of large bass and small fish in a big hole in the Dry Fork River near Jenningston. Ronald Burley is said to have found a sack containing nine sticks of dynamite while fishing.

Landon Failed To Aid Relief, Hopkins Claims

speech criticizing New Deal policies, Hopkins said:

"Johnson is wrong on all counts, in my opinion."

He added:

"But he did do a damn good job for me in New York."

Johnson recently resigned as WPA administrator for New York City.

Criticizes Georgia.

Hopkins said a study had been made of conditions among unemployables in Georgia since they were deprived of Government relief in that State. He said the study showed they "got a tough break."

"They haven't given any relief to unemployables in that State for several months," he added. "The Governor won't do anything for them. He believes in the whipping post."

He added that Ohio, where Hopkins has repeatedly clashed with Gov. Davey, also was among the States that have made no provision for their unemployables.

Asked to discuss the future of relief after the present program is completed, Hopkins said that "we have got to do things for people that have never been done before."

"They got a tough break during the Hoover days," he continued. "Because they starved then is no reason why they should starve now."

Defends New Deal.

"Do you mean people were starving during the Hoover Administration?" he was asked.

"There were people then who didn't have food and clothing and who couldn't send their kids to school," he replied. "That hasn't happened during the Roosevelt Administration.

"This Administration has dug into many of the dark places of America where nobody had looked before. What is fould wasn't nice."

Hopkins, however, would not specify what the Administration relief program for the future might be.

Hopkins declined to estimate the number of persons now at work under the WPA program, but he said it was coming up to expectations. The last announcement, giving figures as of October 19, showed 1,421,470 persons at work, including CCC members. It is believed the number now exceeds 2,000,000.

No Aid After December 1.

Hopkins said that direct Federal relief would be eliminated in 20 more States by November 15 and abolished entirely by December 1. Six States are now without direct relief, and relief allotments for November have been greatly curtailed.

Speaking of the effect of the works program on industry, Hopkins said that the expected the Government to "buy all the tools in America" within the next two weeks.

Ickes announced that the first PWA money had been sent to Louisiana since enactment of the laws, sponsored by the late Senator Long, prohibiting PWA operation in the State. The money, a $1,800,000 loan for a sewer project in New Orleans, was authorized after State's Attorney General Ponterie had ruled that the prohibitory law did not apply to the project. An additional grant of $700,000 is expected to be made for the sewer. Ickes still is holding up between $11,000,000 and $12,000,000 in allotments for the State.

Halloween Parade Attracts 100,000

teenth streets northwest, remained to be taken later.

By early afternoon, children, harbingers of Halloween revelry, were out in their tinsel and tatters. But they spent the afternoon in quiet celebrations—or so the police said. No complaint requiring action had been received at headquarters by 6 p. m.; no false fire alarms traced to the Halloween had been reported.

It seemed the effort to civilize Hallooween, the real reason for organized parades rather than individual sprees, was succeeding.

Vandalism Reported.

In other cities the same effort yesterday resulted in a children's "Mardi Gras" ni Tucson, Ariz., a fireworks display in Cincinnati, and playground programs in Chicago, Milwaukee and Detroit. Concord, Mass., staged a rat hunt, according to the Associated Press.

But the early hours were bringing also the more familiar reports—and the late hours were expected to echo them here—the turning off of hydrants in Minneapolis suburbs, the caling out of the Junior Naval Militia in New Britain, Conn., to watch the fire alarm boxes, nda the receipt of 500 pre-Halloween complaints by the police at Kansas City.

pear in the history of banking in this jurisdiction."

Goldstein compared Cooper to the Colossus of Rhodes, standing "with one foot at Fourteenth and H streets (Continental) and one foot at Fourteenth and G streets (Commercial).

"Why, Cooper hadn't been in Commercial three hours before exactly $175,000 was taken."

The defendant, Goldstein argued, was ambitious to be "the biggest banker in the District."

Calls It Persecution.

Leahy protested Cooper had been persecuted.

"Why make this man the goat?" he asked.

"He did just what every other officer did. Why didn't the Government indict them all? Is it conceivable that he as head of both banks would try to wreck them both when he had a million dollars of his stockholders' money at stake and a quarter of a million of his own?"

All of the Commercial loans to the Continental, Leahy emphasized, were approved by directors of the Commercial and failed to draw the criticism of bank examiners.

"No man is going to handle his own property recklessly," Leahy concluded.

Rumors Claim Use of Money For Candidates

Both Parties Are Urging Straight Ticket Voting in Franklin County.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., Oct. 31.—Rumors of money coming into Franklin County to influence the elections Tuesday were reported yesterday, although definite confirmation was lacking. The report said approximately $4,000 had been received, supplementing a fund which was said to have been received a week ago. Meanwhile, regardless of the truth of the current stories, and a story concerning use of liquor, the political campaign is becoming warm between Republicans and Democrats.

The plea of both sides is for straight party voting. Republicans are urging strong support of Watson R. Davison, for re-election as president judge of the common pleas court. Democrats are working hard in the interest of their entire ticket, particularly for T. Z. Minehart, their candidate for judge.

A letter issued Tuesday by Franklin County attorneys in support of Judge Davison is said to have had tremendous effect. 25 attorneys are pledged to the judge with only nine unpledged.

The vote of church people is sought by both parties. One of the leading issues to bring out a large vote in the southern part of the county is local option for Sunday movies in Waynesboro and Greencastle.

Elkins Youth Captures 23 Black Widow Spiders

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Elkins, W. Va., Oct. 31.—When an Elkins High School student found and captured 23 black widow spiders in a small lot here the students were thrown into panic over the prevalence of the deadly insect.

More than fifty of these spiders are encased in glass in the class room of the biological department of the school. Many of them were found on flowers.

Rain Cuts Forest Fire Peril Near Waynesboro

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., Oct. 31.—Heavy rains yesterday and today removed the forest fire peril in South Mountain. District foresters reported two fires early this week, near the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Preventorium and in a tract of five acres northwest of Waynesboro.

Mail Robber Sought.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 31.—Investigation of a postoffice robbery is being made at Simpson by Federal postal inspectors. The robber opened a mail sack and took money orders amounting to $27. Stamps and a small amount of money were also stolen along with old coins which belonged to E. Lodge Ross, postmaster.

Ida Valley Project Awaits New Start

Homestead Work Begun Last Year, Interrupted.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Luray, Va., Oct. 30.—Hundreds of idle men are waiting for resumption of work on the Ida Valley homestead project of the Federal Government, nine miles south of Luray.

Nearly a year ago work was begun to locate homes for hundreds of families who had their homes taken away by the Shenandoah National Park. Foundations for about a dozen houses and the shells of as many were started on the Saunders farm, bought for the project.

Then came a Government hitch—from what cause has never been ascertained. But, according to information from Washington, coming through local heads who started the work, the digging of hundreds of foundations and the erection of buildings on the Saunders farm will start again next week.

Incendiarist Is Sought At Weston Hospital

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Weston, W. Va., Oct. 31.—Fingerprints of hundreds of inmates of the Weston State Hospital, an institution for insane persons, are being taken, in efforts to trace the origins of incendiary blazes which have been discovered at the hospital since its south wing was destroyed by fire Ocober 3 at a loss of $150,000.

Photographs of three finger-prints found on a half-pint bottle of turpentine in a room where the latest blaze was discovered have been developed. Part of the turpentine was used to start the fire, Dr. J. E. Offner, superintendent, said.

Roll Call Rally Set.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Warrenton, Va., Oct. 31.—Mrs. Katherine Fox Bowman, chairman, Fauquier County Chapter, American Red Cross, has announced November 10 for the roll call rally. It will be held at the Fauquier Theater. A program has been arranged. The coming Red Cross roll call is expected to sustain the lead Virginia has earned in gain in membership.

To Enlarge Plant.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Moorefield, W. Va., Oct. 31.—The Thompson Mahogany Co. is preparing to erect a storage room for its manufactured stock here and to that end has purchased a part of a tract of land near its plant. A railroad spur will be laid to the new building. Work on this project has been started.

Berwind Male Chorus Reorganized at Windber invites your critical judgment of this popular-priced Rye whiskey!

It is Taste . . .
not Claims . . .
whiskey quality!

THE FLAVOR OF A WHISKEY, its bouquet, its "feel" and its aftertaste—these are the factors that really determine how good it is.

And so, in announcing Hiram Walker's Rye, a blend of straight Rye whiskies, we simply invite you to judge it against the very best whiskey you ever tasted.

Notice its luxurious bouquet, its clean, well-defined Rye flavor—its soft, velvety touch as you sip it—its smoothly delightful aftertaste.

Please judge it critically, uninfluenced by words or claims. It is taste—not claims—that tells whiskey quality.

A Warner Player Who Isn't in It, Drops By to See "Midsummer Night's Dream"

Allen Jenkins Is Unexpected Coast Visitor

On Motor Trip Twixt Hits; Pioneer Signs Gahagan; Amusement Notes.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Not all of the Warner Brothers-First National stars were herded into the cast of Max Reinhardt's production of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," after all.

One who wasn't viewed the film for the first time last night from the vantage point of a seventh-row, aisle seat in the National Theater.

He was—and probably still is—Allen Jenkins, side-kick of Jimmy Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Frank McHugh, Hugh Herbert, Joan Blondell, Glenda Farrell, Guy Kibbee and numerous others whom he watched on the screen last evening in many of the most amusing releases that have come off the Burbank lot.

Accosted during intermission and asked a lot of impertinent questions, Mr. Jenkins professed not to know how come he had been omitted from a cast that included practically all of his working associates except the aforementioned Pat O'Brien and Guy Kibbee. If you remember—or even if you don't—they are not in the "Dream," either. Nor are the Misses Blondell and Farrell.

However, Mr. Jenkins seemed not to be bowed down by his omission from the dramatis personnae of the Shakespeare work, although he confessed that the half of it he had seen up to the time those dripping words, "Intermission Ten Minutes," were spelled out on the screen, was pretty elegant celluloid.

Missed the Premiere.

The reason Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins and their guest never had seen the picture before is because they started a leisurely motor trip East directly Mr. Jenkins had finished work in "Miss Pacific Fleet," in which he appears with the Blondell-Farrell distaff combination, a week ago last Friday night, before the "Dream" premiered in Hollywood. Being assigned importantly in Al Jolson's next picture, due to go into work at any minute now, the tourists expected to get no farther than New Orleans at the most. But it seems someone is having some trouble with the Jolson script, or something, so Al keeps on stepping on that gas, between phone calls to his agents to find out when he will be expected back.

At the moment he has high hopes of reaching New York and being permitted to remain there a day or two before having to leap back by plane on five seconds' notice to begin work in Hollywood. If this rush order comes, he will fly home and the womenfolk will be left with nothing to do but drive all the way back alone—which is the way life is in the fillum business.

Mr. Jenkins recalled last night that he had played the old National Theater—always called the "New National" as long as it was a rickety old rattletrap—years ago in a musical version of the comedy "Checkers," with Billy Meehan featured in the lead. Allen at the time was a chorus man! Later he played Poli's.

Was in "Blessed Event."

His last visit to Washington, prior to his present flying trip, was with Roger Pryor in "Blessed Event," the melodramatic comedy based on the career of a famous columnist, written by Forrest Wilson and Manny Seff. His impersonation of the young hoodlum, imported to terrify the columnist, was one of the highlights of the play. It was he, it will be recalled, who shared with Pryor that tremendously gripping scene in which the gangster is forced to listen to an extremely realistic description of what it is like to get the "hot seat" in Sing Sing.

His performance was so excellent that he was chosen to play the same part with Lee Tracy on the screen, thus making his celluloid debut—along with Dick Powell, who played the part of the crooning orchestra leader.

Since that time, Allen Jenning has become a Hollywood fixture. He is about as busy an actor as you will run across on the West Coast, having appeared in a long list of film hits since "Blessed Event," among them "Three on a Match," "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang," with Paul Muni; "Forty-second Street," that rousing musical that re-established the vogue of that sort of thing on the screen; "Ladies They Talk About," "Silk Express," "Bureau of Missing Persons," "I've Got Your Number," "While the Patient Slept," "Page Miss Glory," and an even larger number that I haven't stopped to look up.

You would know Allen Jenkins anywhere, even if his right name is Al McGonegal. He is exactly off the stage as on—jovial, unaffected, utterly downstage and altogether a hail fellow well met, even during the hurried cigaret of a short intermission at a picture he is unwilling to miss an inch of, it is that good.

Had Long Stage Career.

Lest you think Mr. Jenkins purely a movie-made actor, it might be well to set down that before "Blessed Event" on the stage, he had played in such successful productions as "What Price Glory," "Rain," "The Last Mile," the play that brought fame also to Spencer Tracy; "The Front Page" and "Five-Star Final."

Mr. Jenkins and his little party rolled into Washington yesterday afternoon and are devoting this morning to a hurried sightseeing trip around the Capital that has undergone such amazing changes, what with the triangle-mall development and one thing and another, since he was last here.

Early this afternoon they will push on to New York—unless that word comes from the Coast that ol' Massa Jolson and his new script are ready and waiting.

So, if you thought you recognized a familiar face down there in that aisle seat, seventh row on the left, that's who it was—a genial fellow who knows his way around and, since you bring the matter up, a corking good actor with a fine gift of comedy that the Warners are wise to hang onto.

Since he's got this close, I hope he reaches New York and has the time of his life before that summons finally catches up with him.

"Anything Goes," Vinton Freedley's musical hit, starring William Gaxton and Victor Moore, will celebrate its 400th New York performance tomorrow night. Neither Gaxton nor Moore has missed a single performance since the run began with the New York premiere performance last November 5. "Anything Goes" arrives at the National Theater in this city on Monday, December 2.

Pioneer Signs a Star.

Helen Gahagan, once described by the erudite Mr. Heywood Broun as the "ten most beautiful women in America," has been signed to a contract by Pioneer Pictures, the president of which is that other erudite young man, Mr. John Hay Whitney.

Miss Gahagan is the possessor of a unique record in the theater, her versatility knowing no bounds, as the saying goes. She has starred in powerful dramatic roles, in grand opera and in musical comedy and only recently made her screen debut in a difficult role in the film version of J. Rider Haggard's weird story of "She."

The signing of Miss Gahagan, who in private life is Mrs. Melvyn Douglas, wife of the leading man with Claudette Colbert in "She Married Her Boss," marks the first acting personality to be placed under contract by Pioneer. It also marks the second important announcement to come from that company in the last few days.

Eight in Full Color.

Earlier this week announcement was made of the purchase of "La Ballerina," an original story by Natalie M. Kalmus, color director and daughter of the president of the Technicolor Motion Picture Co., which is to be one of the important vehicles in Pioneer's program of eight full-color features.

It was this company that blazed the trail in the matter of Technicolor features by producing "Becky Sharp," with Miss Miriam Hopkins, Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Alan Mowbray in the principal roles.

Before taking up work under her new contract, Miss Gahagan will appear in a series of important operatic works, starting December 2, at the Memorial Opera House in San Francisco.

Spending-Mind-Bet Note.

Now, if you'd just had a ten-spot on Braw Scot in that last race out at Laurel yesterday . . . !

"The Goblins'll Get You . . . !"

With wise old owls, witches on brooms and spooky figures of the night lurking in every shadow, it exceedingly behooves every judicious citizen to watch his step and take in his gate on this eerie Halloween. This seasonable pose of Marsha Hunt, soon to be seen with Walter C. Kelly in Paramount's "The Virginia Judge," has no especial significance beyond reminding theatergoers that practically all of the downtown picture houses are putting on late shows tonight to add to the gayety of one of the year's gala nights.

Scout Award to Be Made.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 31.—It was announced today that the Charles R. Anderson, jr., award will be made again this year to the Boy Scout who is outstanding in Winchester. The award was established several years ago by Dr. C. R. Anderson, mayor, in memory of his son, who died while an Eagle Scout.

Shakespeare Is Held Over for A Second Week

National Retains 'Dream' as New Bills Open New Amusement Week.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

In response to an unprecedented public demand for tickets to view one of the most extraordinary productions in the history of the cinema, Max Reinhardt's picturization for the Warner Brothers of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be continued through a second week at the National Theater. Performances will continue to be at 2:30 and 8:30 p. m., with all seats reserved.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream," with its blending of poesy, fantasy, music, ballet and spectacular photographic effects, is unlike any picture ever made. It is unique—the first thoughtful attempt to transfer Shakespeare to the screen artistically, dramatically and completely.

The cast is comprised of all the stars on the Warner lot, headed by Ian Hunter, Veree Teasdale, Joe E. Brown, Frank McHugh, Hugh Herbert, Olivia de Havilland, Jean Muir, Dick Powell, Ross Alexander, Mickey Rooney, Victor Jory, Anita Louise, Grant Mitchell and scores more. Mendelssohn music, arranged by Erich Wolfgang Korngold, accompanies the action. The ballets were directed by Mme. Bronislava Nijinska. Tickets for the second week are now on sale.

"The Dark Angel," a romantic drama of the Great War, remade with with all of the advantages of sound and modern developments in motion-picture stagecraft, will be the chief feature of the film bill announced for the week beginning tomorrow at Loew's Palace Theater. The principal roles are played by Fredric March, Merle Oberon and Herbert Marshall, supported by Janet Beecher, John Halliday, Henrietta Crosman, Frieda Inescourt and David Torrence. The story concerns a soldier who lost his sight in battle and sought an anonymous seclusion to keeps news of the tragedy from the girl he loved.

George Raft and Joan Bennett are the co-stellar players in Columbia Pictures' new release bearing the title of "She Couldn't Take It," scheduled for the week beginning tomorrow on the screen at the Warner Brothers Earle Theater. On the stage, the headline attraction will be "The Three Sailors," with additional acts supplied by Honeyboy and Sassafras, popular radio comedians; Hal Monken and His Hi-Pressure Revue, with Betty Castle, the Lowdowns and Ferry Conwey, "musical clown." In the film play, in addition to the stars will be seen Walter Connolly, Billie Burke, Alan Mowbray, Wallace Ford and others.

• • • •

Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians, one of the most popular of modern orchestras, will play its first full-week engagement in many seasons at Loew's Fox, beginning tomorrow, as headline attraction of the stage bill. On the screen, the feature will be the new Fox picturization of the famous stage play, "Way Down East," with Henry Fonda, Rochelle Hudson, Russell Simpson, "Slim" Summerville, Spring Byington, Andy Devine, Margaret Hamilton and numerous others in important roles.

• • • •

Opening tonight with special Halloween preview performances at 9:50 and 11 p. m., the chief feature of the screen bill at the RKO-Keith Theater will be RKO-Radio's picturization of Dumas' "The Three Musketeers." Those viewing the final projection of "The Return of Peter Grimm" will be permitted to remain for the new feature without extra charge. The title roles are played on the screen by Paul Lukas, Moroni Olsen and Onslow Stevens, with Walter Abel as d'Artagnan and Margot Grahame as Milady de Winter.

• • • •

Warren William, in his familiar role of Perry Mason, lawyer-detective; Patricia Ellis, Genevieve Tobin, Lyle Talbot, Allen Jenkins and Barton MacLane, are the principal players in "The Case of the Lucky Legs," announced as foremost screen feature for the week beginning tomorrow at the Metropolitan Theater. This is an attraction sponsored by the Clue Club. "Check Your Sombrero," a Vitaphone musical, and full 15-minute newsreel will supplement the entertainment.

• • • •

Rich in laughs, alive with snappy songs and colorful dances and staged with unusual opulence, M-G-M's "Broadway Melody of 1936" will move into the Columbia Theater for the week beginning tomorrow, to continue the F street popularity founded by an earlier engagement at the Palace. Jack Benny, Eleanore Powell, Una Merkel, Sid Silvers and Vilma and Buddy Ebsen lead the cast.

• • • •

"The Passing of the Third Floor Back," which has been doing turnaway business since its world premiere a week ago, will continue for a second week as foremost feature of the bill at the Belasco Theater. Conrad Veidt appears in the role of the Stranger, with Rene Ray, Frank Cellier, Anna Lee and Mary Clare leading the support. This is one of the distinguished screen entertainments of the season and is supplemented by a list of short subjects of appropriate subject matter and worth.

• • • •

Beginning today and continuing through the remaining days of the current week, the screen feature at the Little Theater, Ninth street, near F, will be a revival of "Treasure Island," one of M-G-M's notable productions, with Wallace Beery, Jackie Cooper, Lionel Barrymore, Lewis S. Stone and others of note in the principal roles.

• • • •

"Wine, Woman and Song," one of the famous attractions of the burlesque circuits, will be the offering at the Gayety Theater next week, beginning with the customary Sunday matinee. Buddy Abbott is the featured comedian and Ann Valentine the feminine star.

Meeting Scheduled By Sunday Schools

500 Expected to Attend Middletown Sessions.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Middletown, Md., Oct. 31.—More than 500 representatives from Sunday schools of Myersville, Harmony, Church Hill, Pleasant Walk, Crossnickles, Wolfsville and Garfield are expected to attend the annual meeting of the Myersville District Council of Religious Education. It will be held Sunday afternoon and night in St. John's Lutheran Church, Church Hill, of which the Rev. H. C. Kraft is pastor.

The association, which is interdenominational, has a membership of more than 2,000 and is one of the most active religious groups in Frederick County. John W. Kinnaman, Myersville, who has been president of the council for 12 years, will preside at the sessions.

The afternoon program will include reports from the various Sunday schools, election of officers and addresses by Clarence Harshman and M. H. Leatherman. The evening program will be featured by an illustrated lecture on the "Passion Play" by Page McK. Etchison, religious work director of the Y. M. C. A., Washington, D. C., who has witnessed the production several times at Oberammergau, Germany.

Attendance Perfect.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leonardtown, Md., Oct. 31.—Alice Wood, 12, of Oraville, 10 miles from here, holds the record for perfect attendance at school for the past five years. There were 580 school days in that period and Alice has been present when the roll was called that many times.

Shooting Practice Due For Police This Week

Preparations were pushed yesterday by Police Chief Ernest W. Brown for the Metropolitan Police to begin target practice this week. Brown said Lieut. J. E. Fondahl, of the First Precinct, would be in charge of the practice and would be transferred, temporarily, from his precinct.

The training will include instruction in the use of tear-gas guns, pistols and sub-machine guns. The police will use the rifle range at Camp Simms, National Guard Station, for outdoor firing, and the police range, at 485 C street northwest, for inclement weather.

Fete at Mechanicsville.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leonardtown, Md., Oct. 31.—In keeping with the annual custom, the turkey supper, bazaar and dance will be held by the congregation of All Faith parish on November 1, at the parish hall in Mechanicsville.

Broadway

By Ed Sullivan

42d Street.

New York, Oct. 31.

Recently on Broadway, a gunner of considerable audacity stepped into a barber shop and knocked over two men with small leaden slugs that emerged with considerable rapidity from the blue snout of a gun . . . I have not commented on it at any time, because I have always made it a practice to mind my own business . . . But an amazing thing has occurred which requires comment . . . To date, I've met 6,341 people who were in the barber shop and left five minutes before the cannonading . . . I have met 16,369 people who were being shaved when the lead slugs started flying . . . There is another group of 3,779 who, it seems, were having their shoes shined, and another detachment of 57 people who were playing bagatelle . . . So it seems that the barber shop was occupied, immediately prior to and following the shooting by 26,546 people . . . I guess this is the reason that the gunman had to stand while he was shooting . . . All the chairs were taken.

Study in charcoal: Louis Armstrong, headlined in the new show at Connie's Inn, is really somethin' . . . The coal-blackness of his round face reaches an even deeper tone because of the whiteness of his teeth . . . The puckered upper lip is the badge of his art, for he is the bluest and hottest of the trumpet players . . . Encased in tails and white tie, the squat colored genius ingratiates himself with the ringsiders by bowing and scraping and smirking . . . But when he really goes to work on his trumpet, he carries himself with tremendous dignity . . . Gone now is all vestige of the clown . . . The Paderewski of the horn addresses himself to the task seriously, his right foot forward, his heavy-lidded eyes closed, his head tilted back and up, his fingers caressing the keys surely and certainly . . . Out of the horn streams now a cipher of round, golden notes . . . Starting in a lower register, Armstrong ascends lyrically to the very peak of the scale, and when he reaches that crescendo blare, there is no thinness or compromise with wind or tone . . . His face is beaded with perspiration . . . From various pockets, he withdraws white silk handkerchiefs and dries his face and neck, wiping out the moisture that even has gathered in the corners of his closed eyes . . . His face tears open in a wide, white smile, and he turns back to his band and urges them on by scuffing his elbows and uttering hoarse cries . . . Up-huh, he's really somethin'!

He's listed very formally in the Theater Guild programs as "Sporting Life, played by John W. Bubbles" . . . Actually, this is one-half of the Ziegfeld "Follies" dancing combination of Buck and Bubbles . . . But what I started out to say was that Bubbles turns in a grand legitimate performance as one of the menaces of "Porgy and Bess," the Gershwin opera . . . Like a Jim Barton, who turned from the musical comedy stage and vaudeville to "Tobacco Road," Bubbles has gone from Truckin' to Thespis in one generation—and made good.

The town is split apart by its Saturday night supper club feud. The "Sixty Club," operated by white-thatched Jack Rumsey, is already in operation at the Pierre. A rival supper club will be initiated by Ben Finney at the Ritz-Carlton, where Rumsey once held sway. To stand off each other, the rival supper clubbers are offering free tables to local celebs for Saturday night, with a sweeping invitation to those chosen to bring along as many friends as they want. Broadwayites are happy. On Saturday night, they will get a free meal.

From this column, May 27, 1935: "Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, 73-year-old widow of the inventor, will wed Ed Hughes, 70-year-old friend of the family!" Tuesday, six months later, the Edison laboratories confirmed the scoop by announcing that Mrs. Edison and Edward Hughes were to be married within 24 hours at Chautauqua, N. Y. . . . Some of the critics wondered at the exactness of the performance of Bob Mulligan, who plays the cop in "Dead End" . . . The answer is that he's the brother of Capt. Tom Mulligan, commander of the 19th Precinct, which guards the snooty Sixties . . . Bert Lahr's takeoff on Fred Astaire adds to the hilarity of George White's "Scandals" . . . It comes into Newark today after a Richmond, Va., break-in . . . Bert Cooper goes to the Coast for RKO . . . Patsy Flick authored the flicker which will co-star Jimmy Cagney and Ruby Keeler . . . Although Connie Bennett ran out of town rather than testify for Gloria Vanderbilt in the Whitney suit, she was one of the Hollywoods who entertained Gloria on the Coast . . . Abe Lyman's new heart attack is Mary Jane Frazee, who is too pretty . . . Elmer Leterman's new armful is Sheila Manners . . . Jackie Osterman opened at Chicago's Vanity Fair with a black eye . . . Another one? . . . Aside to Oscar Hammerstein: Sammy White is a "natural" for your celluloiding of "Show Boat" . . . Ken Murray opened at the Kit-Kat, Julie Podell's place last night . . . Recommended: Stanley Walker's "Mrs. Astor's Horse."

Recommended: Ozzie Nelson and his crew at the Lexington . . . Chuck and Chuckles in their Truckin' number at Connie's Inn . . . Jack Denny's grand outfit at French Casino . . . Goff and Kerr's new song parody on the amateur hour, very funny . . . the chicken Mexican at El Morocco . . . Basil Fomeen's Savoy-Plaza outfit playing "You Are My Lucky Star" . . . Edgar Allan Woolf's spaghetti recipe at the Anatole Friedland party . . . Al Donahue's opening at the Waldorf Sert Room . . . this is the band that excited this column's raves on a Bermuda trip two years ago, but nobody wanted him—then . . . Jerry Cooper at the Hollywood.

Skeleton Claimed As Missing Son's

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 31.—Harry W. Dawson, of Ridgeley, W. Va., claimed the skeleton found Monday in the Potomac below this city as that of his son, John Samuel Dawson, 21, missing since last March. Burial will be held in Mount Zion Cemetery, near Kayser, W. Va.

Authorities were told that identification was established through a belt buckle found on the skeleton and examination of the teeth.

Dawson, employed at the celanese plant, disappeared eight months ago after his shoes and a farewell note were found on the West Virginia side of the ice-covered river. The note indicated domestic differences with his young wife.

Only shreds of clothing clung to the bones when found wedged in the bushes on a small island in the river near Wiley Ford.

"Upset The Glasses!"

Assistant Corporation Counsel Rice Hooe is nothing if not forthright. When one of the trig little slant-eyed waiters from a local night club explained that guests held on to their beverages despite his protests that the District liquor curfew had been toiled, Mr. Hooe advised him that he should have upset the glasses. Efficacious as such procedure might have been, it is probably just as well that the waiter did nothing of the sort.

Knocking over a glass never makes for increased cordiality between knocker and knockee; and when the latter is at the very peak of his revelling, and further is so un-Milquetoast as to scoff at a polite reminder that he is breaking the law, it can lead to nothing but bloody anguish and despair. Probably transpacific cables would now be buzzing with diplomatic protests and replies if the waiter had done his duty as Mr. Hooe suggests. Certainly, as legal minds have been quick to point out, the guests would have had fair cases of assault and battery to press if the waiter had ventured (to speak the language of the courts) to molest their persons.

But an assistant corporation counsel's word is an assistant corporation counsel's word, and it looks for the moment at least as though a whole new sommelier's tradition would have to be built up immediately. How will the courtesies of upsetting glasses shape up? Will the waiter first jiggle just a little out of the gentleman's glass, then dump all from the lady's glass, finally returning to complete his work with the gentleman's? And will he be equipped with a billiard cue for his task or perhaps with something like the tongs with which grocers topple boxes from their upper shelves? Around his neck, in place of the traditional wine cellar key, he might wear a catcher's mask—or we should hope so.

It's all very entertaining, in any case. There is only one regret to be registered. It is seldom enough that the birth of a new tradition can be witnessed and when the opportunity arrives it is disappointing that everything is not done to frame the occasion with all possible flourish. Mr. Hooe's failure to remember his Omar is regrettable. For, instead of simply saying to the waiter "You should have upset the glasses," how much more impressive if he had put it:

And when like her, oh Saki, you shall pass
Among the Guests Star-scattered on the Grass
And in your baleful errand reach the spot
Where there is One—turn down that brimming Glass!

Co-ordination Not Enough.

Appointment of Peter Grimm as co-ordinator for the Government's diverse housing and mortgage financing activities comes at a time when most of the projects for which funds are available are already under way. No doubt some important controversies between the numerous agencies functioning in this field remain to be ironed out. From the viewpoint of co-ordinating policies, however, this appointment resembles choosing a watchman after the horse has been stolen.

Two housing agencies, a division of the PWA and the Resettlement Administration, are working in almost the same field. Undoubtedly their organizations should be consolidated. To set up a co-ordinating body to prevent overlapping and conflict merely increases overhead expenses which are already excessive. Since the Federal Housing Administration is working along an entirely different line, co-ordination in its case probably means only avoidance of intrenchment upon projects financed directly by the Government.

What is obviously needed is a consistent housing policy, to be administered by a single responsible board or authority. That matter has scarcely been considered by Congress, and administrative officials seem to be interested chiefly in experimenting in various directions at the same time. Other countries have made their housing programs contribute enormously to the restoration of economic activity. For want of a practical and unified policy this country has missed a great opportunity.

H. Gordon Selfridge, famous London merchant of American origin, told an audience in New York this week that Britain will build 330,000 homes this year, compared to about 60,000 for the United States. Considering the difference in population, he said, our rate of progress in housing is only 8 per cent of Great Britain's. He attributes this difference directly to our lack of a practical program.

It is too frequently assumed in this country that housing programs abroad are heavily subsidized by the governments. Holland has abandoned subsidies in recent years, and Mr. Selfridge reports that 85 per cent of the home building in England is done entirely by private enterprise. Experience has shown that large subsidies and extensive building programs are utterly incompatible because of the expenses involved.

Unfortunately, the PWA and the RA do not seem to have learned that lesson. Something will be gained if Co-ordinator Grimm can impress them with the positive achievements of the FHA, working in co-operation with private agencies. But a complete revision of the present set-up, and in the grandiose plans now in process of execution, will doubtless be essential before this country can anticipate low-cost house construction on a large scale.

Sanctions Begin To Count.

It is more than mere coincidence that the first Italian overtures for a negotiated peace with Ethiopia follow promptly on the heels of President Roosevelt's strong implicit indorsement of League sanctions. For if the United States, pursuing its independent policy, co-operates effectively in bringing economic pressure on the aggressor, the days of Mussolini's present African enterprise are numbered. Realizing that, Il Duce will be well-advised to secure what he can before disintegration sets in on the home front.

No detailed examination of Italian economy is necessary to realize how susceptible that nation is to collective action designed to cut off the supply of basic munitions of war. Italian appreciation of this weakness is revealed not merely by the bitter protests of the Fascist press against sanctions, but even more by the inauguration of meatless days and other drastic restrictions in advance of the full exercise of League pressure. The only real hope of neutralizing this pressure lies in obtaining from non-member states, particularly the United States, the supplies denied to the aggressor by League adherents.

This Italian hope President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull have now gone far to shatter, timing their statements urging a boycott of the Italian (and Ethiopian) markets to coincide with the new session of the Sanctions Co-ordination Committee at Geneva. Whatever may be said to keep up the spirits of the Italian people, in the attitude of our Government Mussolini himself will see the handwriting on the wall. Fortunately he has kept an anchor to windward by maintaining Italy's full membership in the League of Nations. Through this channel he will now undoubtedly maneuver to obtain the best possible settlement while his people are still behind him and his armies victorious in the preliminary stages of the Ethiopian war.

Such overtures will mark the opening of a period of the greatest delicacy and importance for the entire world. Obviously any Italian feers for peace should be met half way. Just as obviously, Italy, and other potentially belligerent states, must not be encouraged to think that the only penalty for ruthless violation of the peace should be a compromise awarding the aggressor the larger part of the spoils he sought to seize by force. Furthermore, any settlement which concentrated merely on punishing the aggressor, evading grievances which gave treaty repudiation plausibility in the eyes of its nationals, would be of dubious long-range constructive value.

It would be highly premature to suppose that the stage of settlement of the Ethiopian war is as yet at hand. But it is not premature to envisage the possibilities for constructive international action which will arise if, as, and when negotiations for settlement become possible. Not merely Italy's claims for outlets will then come under consideration, but the whole fundamental question of how the ambitions of vigorous underprivileged nations are to be reconciled with the preservation of world peace.

The curbing of the aggressor state, vital as is that step, will only be preliminary to the even more complicated question of whether or not the deep underlying causes of aggression can be removed by collective action of the world community.

A Problem In Zoning.

Modern architecture is beginning to do for housing what the masters of design have already done for the automobile. Moderate and even low cost homes are being built in such attractive designs, and in such pleasant settings, that they bear little relationship to the tenements, flats or even the row houses of earlier years. This effort to eliminate the ugliness of multi-family buildings is second in importance only to the reduction in price to bring them within reach of the average income.

In referring to the dwellings planned for a tract in Maryland, bordering on Wisconsin and Western avenues, The Post inadvertently designated them as row houses. Although technically correct, that term might well misrepresent the attractive design worked out for these two-story Colonial structures, containing from two to five complete dwelling units.

So far as this particular project is concerned, the request for a change in the zoning regulations—the area is now designated for detached houses—may meet with little opposition. However, Montgomery County authorities must consider the fact that less desirable houses may be built if once the zoning regulations are modified. A very desirable planned community might thus later find itself surrounded by a less harmonious development.

In this respect our zoning regulations often appear to be inadequate. The most that can be done at present, however, is to apply rather rough formulas in a way that will best protect the interests of the community as a whole.

Why Employment Lags.

President Roosevelt is disturbed over the failure of employment and pay-roll indices to rise as rapidly as industrial production. He apparently believes that the discrepancies in rates of increase, as compared with some arbitrarily selected base, must be corrected in order to find a solution of the country's unemployment problem.

As a matter of fact there is no natural or normal relationship existing between these variable factors in the industrial equation. Technological progress is constantly increasing per-capita output in many industries, making it possible for industrial expansion to occur without commensurate additions to numbers employed. Furthermore, changes in working hours and in living costs affect the size of pay rolls so that earnings indices are very imperfect measures of the relative well-being of workers.

Year-to-year comparisons between industrial activity and employment also are misleading because they fail to take account of part-time employment. For example, the recent "World Economic Survey," published by the Economic Intelligence Service of the League of Nations, indicates that between 1929 and 1932 world employment actually decreased less than industrial activity. Employers both for humanitarian and for selfish reasons hesitated to dismiss men in wholesale fashion. Since 1932, however, when signs of recovery became apparent throughout the world, industrial activity has risen more rapidly than employment because of the presence of short-time workers as well as through the introduction of labor-saving devices.

The interpretation of employment statistics is further complicated by the uneven pace of recovery. Thus the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates that in September employment in industries manufacturing non-durable goods was at approximately 97 per cent of the level of the years 1923-1925, whereas the index for the durable goods industries was only 71.3 per cent. This showing indicates that for this country rapid absorption of the unemployed calls for expansion of the heavy goods industries. That, in turn, requires increased investment activity of a type that will create demands for new capital equipment.

One of the most serious deterrents to a revival of such activity is a spending policy which creates fears for the future solvency of the Federal Government by piling up huge deficits. The situation is made worse by the unsystematic character of the relief program, which provides few safeguards against malingering and does little to assist the transfer of employable men and women from public to private pay rolls.

By removing these handicaps to the re-absorption of the idle into private industry, President Roosevelt can do more to solve the problem of unemployment than by vague appeals to employers. Industry can not indefinitely take on additional men unless thay can be employed without loss, nor can wage rates be raised without regard to the ability of the employing concern to stand an increase in costs. In fact, full-time industrial workers are today being paid about as much per hour in money as in 1929. And if allowance is made for the interim decline in living costs, real wago rates are much higher.

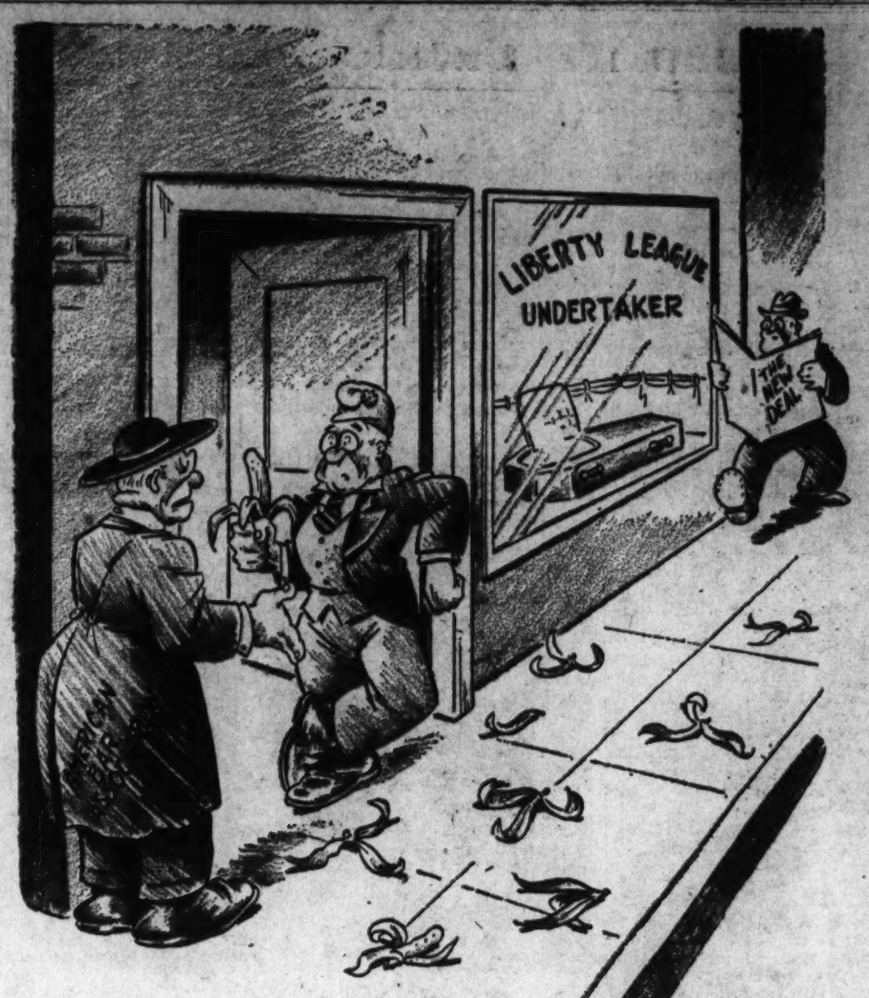
Consequently, a return to an imaginary "normal" relationship between employment, wages and industrial production is impossible. If it were attempted, the resultant maladjustments would plunge the country into fresh miseries. We must look forward, not backward, encouraging existing industries to expand by following wise political policies and seeking new outlets for labor in a world able to produce more goods at a lesser expenditure in man power.

Mail Early!

Decidedly premature to most of us at this time is any mention of Christmas cards. In the midst of Halloween pranks and with an eye cocked to Thanksgiving festivities, the day for the giving of gifts seems afar. But to a group in New York City—the National Alliance of Art and Industry—the contemplation of Yuletide cheer is very much in order now. The annual Christmas Card Mart, which it sponsors, opened its thirteenth exhibition there this week. Here may be seen all the newest and most unique ways of saying "Merry Xmas" for five cents and up.

Despite its seeming untimeliness, there is one factor of this collection which will be of interest to the general public even at this early date. That is the startling indication that Santa Claus and the familiar yule colors of red, green and gold have apparently been plowed under! Sissified pastel shades have replaced the cheerful gaudiness which used to spell good will toward man. And Santa's bulging bag has been abandoned for symbols less characteristic of materialism. The director of the exhibit opined that this might be due to "political and economic uncertainty." Shades of all the Christmas trees that ever shed a coat of needles on the parlor floor! Since when did a Jack-in-the-box, a peppermint cane, a toy drum, have any political affiliations?

As if these drastic departures were not enough, among the cards are some designed by Peggy Bacon. In case that name does not strike terror to the souls of the uninitiated, Miss Bacon is a caricaturist whose likenesses are guaranteed not to swell the heads of her subjects. If a vogue for her cards is created, it would not be surprising to receive a greeting this year somewhat reminiscent of the more earthy variety of Valentine. It looks as though "peace on earth" this yuletide may from many angles prove a somewhat optimistic phrase.



You Might State Your Purpose!

Communism And The Classroom

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
I would like to have the privilege of expressing my reaction to the answer made by Dr. Ballou in your issue of the 29th. It was made in response to agitation of the American Legion and other groups who are decrying the teaching of communism in the District schools. His reasons for the proposed teaching of the subject, is the logical reasoning of any fair-minded person who doesn't have his common sense distorted by biased ideas of patriotism.

The only way to correctly fight against the evil of the Reds and the communism which is their creed, is to teach the students in our schools what the true picture is, and the place to do that and do it properly, is in the classroom. We cannot fight a thing by merely closing our eyes to its existence. The great headway made in converts to communism among college students at the present time is due to the fact that their whole conception of the creed is that which they get from the undercover sources emanating from Moscow and taught to them from the street corner, rather than a true picture taught in the classroom.

The wild cries of such fancy-catching terms as "Americanism," "Patriotism," and the like, along with the glaring but unimpressive headlines of the Hearst newspapers, may hold the public for the present, but the lasting effect is to be derived by instilling in the pliable minds of the school children the fact that no matter how good it sounds in theory, communism in its actual form is rotten and American democracy is made even more glorious by the comparison.

Let's back a conscientious effort by Dr. Ballou to hit the menace where the blow will tell.

MATTHEW FAERBER.
Washington, Oct. 29.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
On the first page of today's Washington Post, under the caption "Ballou Defends Teaching Facts of Communism," there is reproduced a photograph of Dr. Frank W. Ballou, by Harris & Ewing, which bears a very striking resemblance to Lenin. Is there any connection between that striking resemblance and the god of the communists?

Throughout the replies Dr. Ballou makes to the questions submitted by E. Brook Fetty, second vice commander of the American Legion of the State of Maryland, he constantly refers to the facts of communism. What are the facts? Many trained newspaper men and others have gone to Russia, the heaven of the communists, and they do not agree as to the facts.

Has Dr. Ballou issued any instructions to his teachers as to what the facts are? Are there any instructions given them as to where they may find the facts? Is there any check-up as to how they teach what they consider to be the facts? Will Dr. Ballou invite me to go at random to any of the schools, unannounced, to listen to how his teachers teach communism?

To my mind the teaching of communism in the public schools of Washington is nothing less than disgraceful.

WILLIAM McENTEE,
Captain, Construction Corps, U. S. N.
Washington, Oct. 30.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir:
Up to now I had to depend upon your famous George Bungle, you know, the chap who is always wrong over there in the back of The Post, for my morning laugh. But George has competitors, those who foam at the mouth about teaching communism in the schools.

I am a young man, still in my low nineties on a golf course, but I remember when they locked them up for trying to fly. I remember when they fined drivers of horseless carriages for smoking up the streets.

Progress is on its way. Your letter from "Three Per Cent" was a dandy. But I am sort of in favor of having Gen. McCarl send spies into all the schoolrooms to listen to the teachers. Darn it, think what a lot of jobs it would make.

Funny! Boy, oh boy! Think of an organization demanding such a thing in a country founded upon a document that says something about free speech.

The greatest guarantee of liberty in this country is such papers as yours, which print letters from "Three Per Cent" and maybe this one. RUSSELL T. EDWARDS.
Washington, Oct. 29.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
I am glad that some of our Congressmen and parents of the scholars who are now being taught communism by red teachers are taking a stand against those teachers.

Hurrah for the commander of the American Legion for demanding the ejection of every teacher who advocates communism in the D. C. schools. Begin at the highest and go all the way down the line, and have a big shake-up. It will be good for the scholars and also good for the good American teachers, who are sometimes persecuted, because they don't think the same as some others in the school system. A READER.
Washington, Oct. 30.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
One wonders whether bigotry and intolerance have not reached a new low in the American Legion's attitude toward teaching the facts about Russia in the District public schools. Accepting the Legion's approach to the solution of the "red" problem as a sound one, however, any person with a grain of vision can see untold possibilities in its persistent application. For example, there is the matter of slums, cancer, typhus, share-croppers and poverty generally—all bad, and who will rise to deny that these very words should be blotted from the common school dictionary?

But perhaps I am being a bit unfair. Given time, no doubt, Mr. Fetty will attack these and other problems in characteristic fashion. After all, Legion officials must have something to do.

ROMAN L. HORNE.
Washington, Oct. 30.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
It may be our liberals or radicals will lay off the Supreme Court and direct their shots at others nullifying the plain intent of Congress and the President.

Congress, in a statute duly signed by the President, directed withholding salaries from those in our public institutions of learning who either "teach" or "advocate" communism. Along comes our corporation counsel and learnedly states instructors may "teach" communism objectively or incidentally, but must be careful not to "advocate" it.

Goes further our superintendent of schools and publicly states that "facts about communism have been taught in the District of Columbia schools for some time," with the further statement that "the legal opinion of Corporation Counsel Prettyman does not, in the judgment of the school authorities, require any change in the instruction heretofore offered."

Here we have Congress and the President on one side of an important question and the local corporation counsel and the District superintendent of schools on the other.

To settle the question once and for all time it may be necessary to withhold the salaries from the two objecting and nullifying officials course to our highest courts for final adjudication.

SAML SALOMAN.
Washington, Oct. 30.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
With the loyal citizens of the District of Columbia, the American Legion, and Gen. Amos Fries, pressing their case against communism, the article, "Red Menace Appoplexy," by Karl Schriftgiesser, appearing in your paper this week, struck a timely and well-tuned note.

Though your Mr. Schriftgiesser's conception of relationship between the so-called Red Menace and the KuKlux Klan, jumbled in with Naziland, and Amos Fries, isn't quite clear—at least it's cool. And that's commendable.

The whole battle about communism—whether in the classroom or out of it—would be amusing, if it weren't such a sad thrust upon the mentality of the loyal citizens of the District of Columbia.

Fear is grounded on ignorance. A child is afraid of the dark. And the adults who are afraid of communism might lose their jitters if they came up out of their intellectual fog to read something about it besides, "Escape from the Ogpu," or the headlines sponsored by the Seer from San Simeon.

If communism is banned from the classrooms—and you can bet the youngsters are enjoying the fracas about their curricula—they'll be selling Marx at a premium outside the classrooms—which might not be a bad idea.

JOHN APPLEBY.
Washington, Oct. 30.

October 30, 1935.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir:
Can it be that the patriotic 100 per cent Americans, headed by Col. Fries and Mr. Fetty, are going to stop merely at halting the "teaching" of communism in our schools? Dr. Ballou has admitted that monarchism—against which we bared our great - great - grandfathers' breasts in 1776-81—is being "taught" also, to say nothing of Nazilsm, Fascism, Ethiopian slaveryism and regimentation.

But I am informed that the situation is even worse than Dr. Ballou has admitted. My little godson, Eli, tells me that Robinson Crusoe is optional reading even in the fourth grade, so they must be "teaching" cannibalism also. This certainly is a venomous thing—enough to make any patriotic American's gorge rise the way the price of pork chops is now.

And how about what happened to our martyred President McKinley? For all we know they may be "teaching" anarchism too—although I don't suppose the Infant School Association would know the difference.

I am not a resident of the District, and have no children. But I stopped off in front of the McKinley street school to get a bus the other morning and not a child in the yard was waving an American flag. What are we coming to? It is certainly time for all Marylanders and Hawaiians to man the battlements in defense of our liberties.

The Post Impressionist

Brave Young Fellow!

Post Office, Friday.

YOU know those lists of "the most distinguished women" and the gentlest contemporary gentlemen which have, every now and then, graced the news columns of this newspaper? Well, if you were drawing up a list of the bravest living individuals among the really weaker sex, with whom would you start?

With the famous Joe Louis—because he defied and defeated Max Baer?

With the almost equally famous Jimmy Walker—because, although he went away, he (eventually) came back?

The Post-Impressionist has another candidate: the author of an article in Harper's Magazine.

His qualification does not consist of opinions with which our Column agrees. On the contrary—as you will presently see—we dissent from his opinions violently. But we trust that we are broad-minded enough to bow to bravery per se in whatever cause it may volunteer.

Our hero's qualification consists in his having the courage of those opinions: the daring, which rises lark-high above effrontery, to utter them.

To be sure, they are tucked away in an uncandid corner of his essay dealing with counsels of perfection: "Getting Along With Women." Nevertheless, the opinions are there, in cold print.

To be sure, also, the author does not sign his name to his work; he has employed the careful camouflage of anonymity. Yet we protest that, had he appended his signature to his declarations, he would have debased bravery by the suggestion of mere rashness.

For what he says is that women have no imagination.

That is exactly what he says. He says:

"Man is given to vain, if sometimes glorious, imaginings, whereas woman is realistic . . . Imagination is peculiarly masculine."

* * *

Where did he get that way?

Among women!

At all events, the Reader's Digest, in its note about him, so avers: "Anonymous though he wishes to remain"—as who, in such a spot, wouldn't?—"he grew up in the midst of an immediate family of women comprising mother, sisters, an aunt and a cousin, without"—he himself adds—"a man or man-child besides myself." And he goes on: "In newspaper agencies, movie studios, theatrical offices, it has been my fortune over a period of 20-odd years not only to work with women, but of late years to supervise and direct their steps. I have been occupying all my life a very advanced outpost in the country of the Amazons."

How long would he be able to hold that outpost if the aborigines discovered his belief that they were imaginatively idiotic?

But hear him out: "For confirmation of this truism that imagination is peculiarly masculine, one need only recall that all the fairy tales of the world have been, and continue to be, written by men. I give you Hans Christian Andersen, the Brothers Grimm, Andrew Lang, Homer, Virgil and the nameless spinner of Scheherazade's adventures."

Apparently, nobody has ever given him the complete works of Juliana Horatia Gatty Ewing.

The Post-Impressionist believes in fairy tales: they are necessary to education, not to mention culture. He even—yes, before J. M. Barrie and Maude Adams asked him to—believed in fairies as firmly as does G. K. Chesterton. Nor are we going to quarrel with this anonymous critic's use of the word "imagination" when "fancy" might be more precise—for we, too, have Amazons about us.

Let us grant that there are today few women writing fairy tales. Let us even grant that there used to be fewer women than men engaged in that delightful and delighting occupation. There remain two things to be said.

As for today: In this sad age, when material wings have been found for mechanical birds, how many men—let alone women—are writing fairy tales? Almost the only contemporary fairy-tale writers we can think of at the moment are debunkers who labor under the misbelief that their work is biography.

And as for the past: Imagination isn't shown in the writing of fairy tales. It is shown in their making. Well, then, in the days when woman's place was the nursery, did there ever breathe a mother who didn't "make up" fairy tales for her children?

No, no! We yield to none in admiration of this essayist's courage but we won't accept his cause.

Women can't tell fairy tales? What does he call some of the stories that wives tell their husbands? Evidently, the man, for all his experience, is still a bachelor.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

At The Mewice.

Paris, October 31.

THE favorite hotel of European royalty, exiled and otherwise, in Paris is the Hotel Meurice, which was founded in 1807 by the man who held the concession for the mail and passenger travel on the coach route from Calais and Boulogne and via those ports to London. In those days the hotel was comparatively small, with a large coach yard and stables adjoining. In 1905 it was pulled down—all except the front wall on the Rue de Rivoli, which harmonized with the architecture of the street and was protected by law.

Up to 1907 the Hotel Bristol was the hotel patronized by royalty in Paris. The former Edward Prince of Wales had stopped at the Bristol, and minor platoons of royal rank followed him. Royalty, like ball clubs, actors and shoe salesmen, have preferences in hotels and flock together so they may be able to talk shop.

The Meurice was reopened in 1907, and King Alfonso of Spain began to patronize the new place, whose plumbing was modern for the time and whose comforts generally outmoded the Bristol. The present Prince of Wales is now a frequent guest at the Meurice, having begun his patronage during the war, when he would rush in town from the British front for a day or two accompanied by Lord Claude Hamilton, his pal. Wales was Capt. Hamilton's lieutenant. They traveled without an equerry, secretary or valet. They would toss their bags into an apartment, spend a few days relaxing and then go back to war.

Alfonso still maintains an apartment at the Meurice, but it has been reduced from the seven-room suite which he required for his family when the Queen was a member of the troupe and they were both young. At present Alfonso's quarters on the second floor on the Rue de Rivoli side include a bedroom, dining room, drawing room across from those reserved for the Prince of Wales and his equerry and secretary.

• • • •

ALFONSO and the Prince of Wales frequently eat in the dining room, where they are attended by the head waiter, named Edouard Holton, a Swiss with solemn mein. They prefer plain food as plainness is reckoned in royalty's own hotel, and they conduct themselves in a democratic manner, even deferring to women guests on entering and leaving elevators, contrary to royal prerogative.

Crown Prince Gustave Adolph of Sweden, whose hobby is archeology, has just spent a week in the place, and Alfonso is returning Sunday from one of his trips to Italy. He has little to do but travel now.

The late King Albert of the Belgians and Queen Elizabeth appeared at the Meurice often, and their son, Leopold, the present King, whose wife was killed in an automobile accident recently, continues the custom. Prince George of Greece has been living in London, but he stops at the Meurice when he is in Paris.

The King of Denmark, the Italian royal family, the late Shah of Persia, the former King of Siam and the late King Nicholas of Montenegro have been guests of the Meurice in recent times.

After Nicholas of Montenegro had lost his country he had neglected to provide himself with a tin box in Paris, but he, his Queen, his two daughters and his son were never for a moment embarrassed for room rent, because the allied governments put them on the pay roll and charged it to the cost of running the war.

• • • •

CAROL of Rumania used to drop in occasionally, but Carol's conduct began giving the place a bad name, and there was no great regret when he decided to rent a little flat where he could play house with his girl friend. After all, a King is as good as a private citizen only as long as he behaves himself and doesn't drive respectable people away.

On formal occasions when a King or a prince for state reasons wishes to strut his rank it is customary for the French government to dust off the state department of the foreign office and house him free of charge. Rarely has the Meurice been forced to entertain royalty under formal conditions necessitating extra guards and considerable ceremony, which is inconvenient to the other guests.

Altogether royal patronage is desirable, as it tends to attract rich Americans, who are by now almost as extinct as aristocratic European travelers, but, unlike the late Huey Long, who boasted that he was "favored" by hotels in New York City and elsewhere in return for ballyhoo, all royal guests at the Meurice are not only asked to pay but would insist on doing so because they believe that their subjects would prefer to pay their way. It would humiliate a Spanish peasant most painfully to realize that Alfonso placed himself and them under obligation to an innkeeper by accepting free hospitality. Taxpayers, especially European peasants are very proud and sensitive that way.

Edmond Rostand, the great French poet, wrote "Chanticleer" and other notable works in the Meurice, where he found the atmosphere most helpful, but the same atmosphere cramps your correspondent's style, and he is leaving for Geneva.

Japan's Pacific Mandates

League Receives First Report Since Tokyo's Withdrawal.

By Bertram Pickard.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Geneva.

ONCE again, in connection with Japan's annual report to the Mandates Commission (October 28 and 29) the eyes of world public opinion are turned toward those 2,500 islands and coral reefs which have been called the "stepping stones of the Pacific" and which Japan, though no longer a member of the League of Nations, still administers as Mandatory.

In view of the fact that this is the first time that Japan has reported to the Commission in the role of a non-member of the League; and since these South Sea islands are, and will continue to be, of peculiar interest to people of the United States, it may be useful to summarize briefly the present position of Japan as a Mandatory of the League.

The first question to be considered is the legal consequences of Japan's departure from the League, so far as the Japanese mandate is concerned.

In some quarters it was argued that upon leaving Geneva, Japan would be obliged to hand back the islands to the League. Such a view was not only expressed in German circles, where hopeful eyes were not unnaturally cast towards former possessions. A leading article in the Manchester Guardian of April 7, 1933, after citing a passage from a Council report of August 5, 1920 (generally known as the Hymans Report), drew the conclusion that: "If that does not establish the League's ultimate sovereignty, what does?" As late as February 23, 1935, the London correspondent of the Journal de Geneve wrote: "If Japan leaves the League she will be obliged, theoretically speaking, to hand back the isands to the League."

• • • •

AGAIN, Mr. E. T. Williams (formerly of the American Foreign service) in a most interesting and well-informed article on "Japan's Mandate in the Pacific" published in the American Journal of International Law of July, 1933, suggests that although "the mandate granted to Japan does not appear to have been conditioned upon her remaining in the League," and although "the requirements of the mandate seem to have been carefully observed by Japan," nevertheless, "Japan, having refused to abide by the decision of the Assembly in the Manchurian affair, the League might revoke the mandate as a penalty for recalcitrance."

But the contrary view is generally held, though no authoritative pronouncement either by an organ of the League, or by any tribunal, has been made, or sollcited. Despite the fact (as Mr. Williams notes) that the minutes of the Council of Three in Paris record that on April 22, 1919, President Wilson remarked that "he mgiht be entitled to question whether Great Britain and Japan had been justified in handing round the islands in the Pacific," the fact remains they were handed to Japan by the Supreme Council on May 7, 1919, i.e. prior to the creation of the League; while by Article 119 of the Treaty of Versailes the sovereignty over the islands was ceded by Germany, not to the League, but to the principal allied and associated powers.

Japan herself (as also the United States) has always emphasized this fact, and in April, 1933, shortly after her notice of withdrawal from the League, the Japanese Foreign Office circulated a statement of the reasons which "entitle Japan to retain her mandated islands in the Pacific, notwithstanding her secession from the League." This was generally interpreted as a plain warning that Japan intended to keep the islands "with Geneva, without Geneva, or against Geneva," to borrow a notorious phrase used recently in another connection.

WHETHER this implied threat influenced the minds of jurists, as well as of politicians, is difficult to say. It is probable that the jurists of mandatories other than Japan substantially indorse the Japanese view; and the commonly accepted legal view would seem to be well summed up in the following concluding observations of Prof. Luther Harris Evans, of Princeton, in an article published in the American Journal of International Law of January, 1933:

It would appear, therefore, that if Japan were to withdraw from the League, the legal status of the Japanese mandate would not be affected thereby in the slightest degree. The same thing would be true even if Japan were evicted from the League as a Covenant breaker, since the grounds for such eviction would not, in the present circumstances, have any relation to the proper administration of the Japanese mandated territory and the fulfilment of Japan's obligations as a mandatory. The question of whether Japan has violated the Covenant, the Nine Power Treaty, or the Kellogg Pact in no way touches the question of whether she has fulfilled her obligations as a mandatory. It is only when Japan fails to fulfill those obligations that any question can arise as to her legal disqualification as a mandatory.

Is It For These That Japan Improves South Sea Island Harbors?

• • • •

THAT brings us to a second question to be considered, namely, whether Japan has, or has not, loyally fulfilled the terms of her mandate over the islands. In most respects a clear answer in the affirmative is possible. Mr. E. T. Williams, in the article already cited, states that the annual reports to the Mandates Commission "have been made very regularly and very fully by the Japanese Government;" furthermore, that "these reports encourage the belief that the islands are governed, as required by the Covenant, 'in the interest of the indigenous population.'"

Again, in an interesting article by the Tokyo correspondent of the London Times entitled "Sea Outposts of Japan," published in that paper on April 2, 1935, may be found the assertion that "the Mandates Commission of Geneva has had no fault to find with Japanese administration."

Apart from certain preoccupations of the commission concerning native health, press censorship and alleged exclusion of foreign visitors, this is true. There is, however, one other important exception, namely, that in recent times the mandates commission has shown considerable anxiety concerning some heavy expenditure connected with harbor developments in the islands. Despite repeated assurances from Japan that the obligation (see article 22 of the Covenant) not to fortify or establish military or naval bases is being loyally carried out, it cannot be said that the doubts and suspicions of the commission have been fully set at rest.

• • • •

THE following figures showing increases in expenditure in this field, which the Japanese justify on grounds of necessary commercial development, will suggest why the commission at its meeting a year ago felt obliged to put some very direct and undiplomatic questions concerning the rumors current in the press, and elsewhere, to the effect that Japan was utilizing her mandate for strategic purposes.

	Yen.
1922	3,916
1923	6,771
1924	19,656
1925	12,924
1926	94,145
1927	307,896
1928	293,369
1929	183,013
1930	159,826
1931	155,799
1932	118,254
1933 (estimated)	515,000

Geneva Views Askance Recent Expenditures On Harbors.

The members of the Commission at their meeting a year ago were considerably alarmed to find that the expenditure for 1933 (following Japan's withdrawal from the League) had jumped to 515,000 yen, the expenditure at Saipan Harbor having trebled, that at Palau Harbor being seven times as great as in the preceding year.

• • • •

IT was in the light of these statistics and in view of the unsatisfactory replies of the Japanese representative that certain members of the Commission, including the chairman and vice chairman, as the minutes show, did not fail to express their surprise and uneasiness.

For example, Prof. William E. Rappard, long time member of the Commission and one-time director of the Mandates Section of the League Secretariat, referred to certain contradictory elements in the Mandatory's Report and explanations as "curious facts" which "tended to arouse anxiety in the minds of unbiased persons with regard to the rumors current regarding the purposes of this large expenditure."

Subsequently the Japanese member of the Commission (Mr. Sakenobe) stated that "having visited some of the islands under Japanese mandate (including Saipan and Yap) he was convinced that the charges that had been brought against the Mandatory Power were devoid of foundation. He could not, however, refrain from expressing the hope that the Mandatory Power would act in such a way that all possible suspicion directed against it might be promptly dispelled."

It remains to be seen whether Mr. Sakenobe's hope will be realized.

Hagerstown Accidents Put Two in Hospital

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 31.—Two persons are in the S. M. Bloom Memorial Hospital here following accidents here yesterday.

Mrs. Betty Liskey sustained several fractured ribs when the car of W. H. Cochran turned over near Snyder's Landing in a heavy fog. Mr. and Mrs. Cochran and Elizabeth Liskey received slight injuries.

Owen B. Eyler, Hagerstown, suffered shock and injuries when his car was in collision with another car at a street intersection here.

No End Of Books

By Theodore Hall

Pulitzer Plays.

F. P. A. once suggested that among our Apple Weeks and Philately Weeks and Take-Home-a-Stray-Dog Week, there certainly should be room for a "Finding Fault With Pulitzer Prize Week." Given a nobby title or not, that's one of our prime annual sports. The real ruckus is never over the best newspaper editorial or the best reportorial work (which no one outside the home bailiwick ever sees) or the best American biography or the best U. S. history (which everyone approves solemnly and buys for the parlor table) or the best poetry (we all liked R. Frost and E. A. Robinson anyway), nor even over the best novel (however acid was the comment on portraying American life and manners in a tale of China or Peru). No, the real, ripe shindig has always been over the Pulitzer plays.

But that now seems a bit puzzling. Anyone looking back over the prize list since 1918, or, better yet, browsing through this sumptuous 856 page volume, "The Pulitzer Prize Plays: 1918-1934" (Random House, $3.50), must be struck by the fact that the awards in drama seem to have more continuing vitality today than have the awards in any of the other fields. Weak sisters there are, and no brief can be made for them, but compared with some of the inanities in the poetry or the novel awards they stand as shining lights.

On the other hand, the work of George Kelly, Paul Green, Owen Davis, Sidney Howard, Elmer Rice, Marc Connelly, Maxwell Anderson and George S. Kaufman is the very backbone of American dramatic writing in the last two decades. The head, of course, is Eugene O'Neill, who rules his field as does no American novelist, poet, historian or biographer. However hotly disputed at the time, the choices of the Pulitzer committee do constitute a lasting resume of our recent national drama.

Edited by Kathryn C. and William H. Cordell, and with an introduction by William Lyon Phelps, this book holds 16 complete Pulitzer plays in a handsome and readable format. The editors struck a snag over the 1935 play—even though Zoe Akins was very glad to let "The Old Maid" be included, the publishers of the play flatly refused re-print permission. Tinder and sparks seem to go hand in hand with the Pulitzer.

• • • •

IT is perhaps too easily said by some people that William Lyon Phelps is to the book world what Coolidge, in his newspaper column, was to the field of comment in general. Such pundits must be snobbish to acidulous souls, not seeing that what is platitudinous or trite to them may be clarification, valuable underscoring, or a whole new view to many, many others not possessed with the manifold "advantages" (by no means left unshouted from the housetops) of the parties of the first part.

Prof. Phelps' "Yearbook" (MacMillan, 2.50), a day-by-day selection from his syndicated literary column, shows the admirable range and vitality of his interests, and the great good sense of most of his comments. If some of his pieces seem merely to be re-written from any high-school grade literary history, there are any number of others which are pithy, pointed, and adult. His defense of Harold Bell Wright is something the smart boys will never be mature enough to join; his wide reading and memory of English and American literature is something they have yet ahead of them; and his simple kindliness may seem too catholic and all-embracing, but it is also too rare.

Not in a long while have I read a book about books which gave me a sharper appetite for reading than did the varied, all-curious, old-school pages of this ramble among the book-shelves.

Burden of A Nation

Reporter Finds CCC Work Is Praised Everywhere.

The twentieth article on the results of Government relief expenditures as found by a Post staff reporter on a country-wide tour.

By Felix Bruner.

Mason, Tenn. (By Mail).—Along the road east of Memphis is a CCC camp. It is no different from hundreds of others scattered all over the country. On this rather extensive journey, being made for the purpose of exploring the relief problem, I have heard nothing but praise for the CCC. This praise was rather extravagantly echoed by the young Marine reserve officer who at the moment was in command of this particular camp.

Said he:

"If President Roosevelt fails at everything else, his Administration will be successful because he established the CCC."

In this particular camp—a junior camp, as contrasted with a camp housing war veterans—are 124 young men from Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi. The camp is situated on a plot of land rented to the Government at $1 a year by the farmer who lives across the road.

CCC Fights Erosion.

The CCC boys here are engaged in soil erosion work. Because the principal crops for generations have been cotton and corn the land is being worn out and washed away. On much of it there have been no "cover" crops for decades. To even the inexperienced eye it is evident that erosion in this section has made production impossible on thousands of acres of land. The CCC is building dams, terracing hillsides and planting bushes and trees. Farmers are being persuaded to rotate their crops and to plant the kind of crops that will prevent the land from washing away.

While the camp is in charge of Marine reserve officers, the soil erosion work is being directed by trained experts of the forestry service. The CCC boys work five days a week on neighboring farms, some of them 15 or 20 miles from the camp. On Saturday they spend the morning "policing" the camp. Saturday afternoons and Sundays they are free to do as they please.

Before coming into the camp the men are given rigid physical examinations. These examinations are repeated monthly. A record is kept of each man. Nearly all of them—many were sadly undernourished when they came to camp—show gains in weight and general health. Some of the boys were so weak when they reported for work that they fainted in the fields. They soon snapped out of it, however, with ample diet and ideal living conditions.

Typical Day Mapped.

Here is a typical day in the life of a member of the CCC:

5:45 a. m.—The camp is aroused by the blowing of a whistle. In this particular camp nobody could be found who could manage a bugle.

6:15 a. m.—Breakfast.

6:45 a. m.—Fall in for 15 minutes of setting-up exercises.

7 a. m.—Board trucks and start for the fields.

Noon—Lunch in the field. Three days a week sandwiches and coffee. The other two working days, hot lunch.

12:45 p. m.—Back to work.

4 p. m.—Quit work and back to camp by truck.

4:30 p. m.—Policing camp and recreation.

6 p. m.—Dinner.

7 p. m.—Movies in nearby village, or school in the camp.

10 p. m.—Lights out.

Menus Are Listed.

Here is what the boys were given to eat on the day I visited the camp:

Breakfast—One-third quart of milk, oatmeal, bacon omelet, bread, coffee.

Lunch (served in the field)—Grilled frankfurters, sauerkraut, mashed potatoes, cole slaw, bread, coffee, tea or cocoa, fruit.

Dinner—Beef steak, brown gravy, creamed potatoes, peas, bread pudding, bread, iced tea.

"And are these boys hungry?" grinned the officer in charge of the mess. "We don't know anything about reducing diets here."

The food is cooked in a spotless kitchen. Everything about the camp is scrubbed to almost painful cleanliness. Cots are made up in a military manner. But that is the only thing military about the camp. There are no drill formations, no saluting. A CCC boy greeted the officer showing me about with a friendly grin, and a "Hi."

Doctor Visits Daily.

Besides the barracks in which the boys live there is a hospital—a doctor visits the camp every day—with a well-equipped supply room and a first-aid station. There were no patients in the hospital. There is a recreation room with a billiard table and a stage on which the boys can strut their stuff for the benefit of their fellows. There is a traveling library with new books every six months. Two copies each of 40 periodicals come to the camp regularly.

There is an educational adviser who has charge of night classes. Reading and writing, arithmetic and other elementary subjects are taught. Camp officers double as instructors.

The basic pay is $30 a month, of which $25 is sent to the family of the CCC member. But there are opportunities for pay increases. Assistant leaders, for instance, receive $36 a month and leaders receive $45. In each instance only $25 goes to the family. There are 7 leaders and 25 assistant leaders in this camp.

The boys are given half their pay the first of each month. They receive the other half on the tenth. This system was made necessary, it was explained, by the fact that some of the boys are inclined to spend all their money at once. Out of each pay in this camp 50 cents goes for laundry. There is a separate laundry building in the camp.

Given Clothes Outfit.

When a man arrives in camp he is given two pairs of shoes, socks, two pairs of pants, two shirts, overshoes, a cap, a raincoat, a tie, underwear, a toilet kit and towels. In winter an overcoat, a coat and mittens are issued. Each man has a locker in which his kit is neatly stowed.

Although enlistment periods are for six months, many of the boys re-enroll. Many others obtain outside jobs. Last month 35 men were discharged from this particular camp because they had found private employment.

Discipline is not particularly severe. In extreme cases a dishonorable discharge is issued. For minor infractions the offender is given additional or unpleasant work. The CCC members are free to leave whenever they care to. If a man leaves without announcing his departure, he is carried on the rolls for eight days and then dropped. Few leave, except when they get jobs.

The boys in this camp were not particularly communicative. Most of them are sons of tenant farmers. They are receiving such an opportunity to learn and to build their health as they never would have had without the CCC.

One tall boy from Arkansas asked how he liked the CCC, summed up the sentiment of the crowd:

"Purty good," he said, "but we got to work hard."

Tennessee in Camp Is Held Typical of Activity.

7 Markers Planned For Tucker County

One to Denote Boundary of Old Fairfax Estate.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Parsons, W. Va., Oct. 31.—Five roadside markers and two boundary markers will be erected in Tucker County on suggestion of the West Virginia Commission on Historic and Scenic Markers.

One at Parsons will set forth that John Crouch established settlement rights there in 1776. A stone marker at the head of the Potomac River will point out the western limit of the vast estate of Lord Fairfax.

The St. George marker will show that town as the first county seat and that an Indain fort was built there in 1774 by John Manear. Another marker to the southeast of Blackwater Falls will be in the scenic class, and the Seneca trail or Warrior's path marker will recall the trail as the Indain highway from New York State to the South.

In West Virginia this trail followed in general the Alleghany Mountains. Although made by moccasined feet centuries ago, it is visible at many points today.

Wave of Vandalism Sweeps Hagerstown

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 31.—Local authorities tonight kept a sharp lookout for vandals following a wave of depredations here last night.

Throughout the night police headquaarters was besieged with calls from all parts of the city, reporting removal of porches and smashing of windows. Scores of cars were smeared with a soap compound which can be removed only with difficulty.

Since the inauguration of the Mummers' parade here some years ago, there had been little vandalism until last night.

Authorities promise that all who are caught tonight will face maximum penalties.

To Resume Drive.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 31.—The Clarksburg Community Chest will begin a "resolicitation" campaign next week in efforts to reach its annual goal of $35,000 for six welfare agencies. As a result of the recent annual drive, and minor contributions since it ended, pledges amount to $19,819.50.

A Mental Test for Auto Drivers.

("Mental tests are urged for applicants for automobile driver's licenses."—News item.)

1.—What is a left-hand turn and should it ever be confused with some sort of old-fashioned dance?

2.—Check the words which properly complete this sentence: Traffic light systems are installed at great expense . . . to amuse children . . . to give the electric light companies a break . . . to direct traffic.

3.—Which is the more important as a factor in safe driving, the brakes or the horn?

4.—Why is a speedometer put on a car, and do you ever confuse it with a compass?

5.—What is the meaning of a sign "Speed Limit 25 Miles," and in your opinion is it of greater or lesser significance than "No Smoking," and "Keep Off the Grass?"

• • • •

6.—Check the words that complete this sentence: Traffic policemen wear white gloves . . . to protect chapped hands . . . because they may be called to a wedding . . . because their kid gloves are being cleaned.

7.—Translate the sign "School Ahead; Go Slow," and give your opinion of its meaning, if any.

8.—What's wrong with these sentences:

(a)—An auto operator may always consider hmiself to be driving cautiously as long as his car is right-side up.

(b)—In passing a standing surface car an auto should slow down to 75 miles an hour.

(c)—A man should slow down his car to a reasonable rate of speed the minute his engine begins skipping or a tire blows out.

9.—You are driving through a congested street at 68 miles an hour because you are in a hurry to get to a crap game; the red light against you shifts to green while an old lady is still halfway across the street; which would you do? Take your time? Run her into an alley? Yell at her out of the side of your mouth?

10.—There are approximately 42 important rules for safe driving; name one of them from memory.

11.—When a traffic policeman blows his whistle and holds up his hand, he means . . . remember me to mother . . . abandon ship . . . full speed ahead . . . Republicans carry Maine by 78,000 . . . stop your car?

12.—When driving at high speed at night and you suddenly see a sign "Dead End Street," the thing to do is to . . . change your oil . . . slam on the brakes . . . wipe off the windshield . . . eat plenty of green vegetables?

13.—When you are about to back up in traffic, do you hold out your hand, blow your horn, wave a red lantern or step on the accelerator?

14.—Multiply ten miles an hour by eight and state if that is a safe speed to drive a car across a blind intersection.

15.—In a case where an automobile driver suddenly finds his car on the sidewalk with pedestrians, which should make way, the autoist or the pedestrians? (Oh, you have seen the examination papers in advance!)

Caverns Chef Hero, Saves Hunting Dog

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 31.—The daring of "Happy" Mumaw, chef at a hotel at Shenandoah Caverns, Va., resulted in the rescue of a valuable hunting dog from a hole 100 feet deep at Shenandoah Caverns, and in discovery of a new cave, it was announced today by Hunter B. Chapman, owner of the property.

Some time ago, Dr. Douglas Chapman, of Richmond, sent two valuable dogs to his father for training. One of the dogs fell in the hole while chasing a rabbit, it is believed.

When the dog failed to reappear after several days, one of the employes called at a number of openings in the ground. From one of these the dog's bark could be heard.

Mumaw, armed with lights and with plenty of rope, volunteered to rescue the dog. At the bottom, he discovered a large cavern filled with glittering pools and marble formations. It is planned to develop the cave, which has been named the Floyd Neff Cavern, and connect it with the main cavern by a passage.

Scouts List 5 Feature Events For November

Camp Roosevelt Honor Tribe to Hold Fall Meeting Tomorrow.

Five features are included in the November schedule of Scout activities in the District of Columbia Council—the C. M. O. outdoor meeting tomorrow, the house warming, Wednesday; Armistice observance, November 9; the bugling contest, November 16; and leadership training weekly on Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

The Honor Tribe of Camp Roosevelt, known as the C. M. O., will hold its fall meeting in Rock Creek Park at the Sixteenth Street Reservoir, tomorrow afternoon and evening. The program, which includes games and other forms of entertainment, will be featured by a Scout supper which will cost 15 cents. Richard Miller is president.

The housewarming is the occasion for Scouts, Scout leaders and friends of scouting to inspect the new Boy Scout offices on the second floor of 1727 K street. A musical program has been arranged.

The annual bugling contest to select a council bugler and assistant council bugler will be held at the Powell Junior High School. It has been suggested that each division send at least one competitor and that division buglers be selected in the same competition. It has also been suggested that these division buglers be formed into a corps. A free instruction offer has been received. A new bugle will be awarded the winner of the council contest.

Leadership training courses are continuing at Scout headquarters the Cub course on Tuesday evenings and the Elements on Wednesdays.

At its last meeting the national executive board voted in favor of a national jamboree in the early summer of 1937. The place was not decided.

The next court of honor will be held November 9 at the Hine Junior High School, Seventh and Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

The quarterly court of awards is scheduled for December 7.

Fairmont Sets $38,000 As Chest Drive Goal

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fairmont, W. Va., Oct. 31.—The goal of the Community Chest drive here, to begin within two weeks, is $38,280.56, as approved by the board of directors of the organization. The amount raised will be distributed among eleven welfare agencies.

The goal is $4,000 more than last year's, because of withdrawal of Federal Emergency Relief Administration support. A series of radio talks, beginning Monday, will precede the solicitations.

On The Air Today

DICK HIMBER, maestro of the "Champions," is the guiding light in a movement to set aside the first week in November as "Victor Herbert Testimonial Week"—which means that the Nation's orchestras would add a Herbert selection to each program.

How well it will be observed by other band leaders remains to be seen, but a large number, particularly those organizations in and around Chicago, have signified their intention of dedicating a number each program this coming week to the memory of a great composer.

To start the week off, Himber and the "Champions" tonight highlight a medley from "Babes in Toyland," WJSV, at 10.

To the increasing number of "local pickups" has been added the Club Volga Boatman, WMAL will broadcast half an hour from this Russian night club each Friday at 10:30 p. m. Traditional gypsy music featuring the orchestra and chorus will be the fare. N. B. C.'s local schedule now includes Club Habana, Club Heigh-Ho, Wardman Park Continental Room and the Lotus Restaurant.

WJSV adds a new Washington sustaining program to its Sunday night schedule next week when an hour of "Midnight Skyride" variety is picked up from the La Paree, where Emory Daugherty is staging a show with the assistance of night club and theater artists at ease."

Several times recently listeners have phoned to inquire about programs from WOR and how to get programs during daylight hours from Mutual network stations. The only answer to that question is to turn the power up on the receiving set and "shop around." My thought is that the radio set would have to be unusually effective to catch signals from WOR, WLW or WGN (Chicago) regularly in daylight hours.

Culbertson on Bridge

Trapping Your Partner.

The laws of the land are full of punishments for ordinary, misdemeanors and felonies against civilized society, but there's an aching void in them. What about the crimes of the bridge table? Beheading not only would be too good—it wouldn't help. Bridge criminals wouldn't even miss their heads. Certainly not those who perpetate that most atrocious outrage which occurs so often, "trapping one's partner." Yet this incredibly stupid action arises constantly. Such bidding as North, "one club"; South, "one heart"; North, "three hearts"; South, "four hearts"; North, "five hearts!" is as commonplace as it is terrible. Let us analyze such a chain.

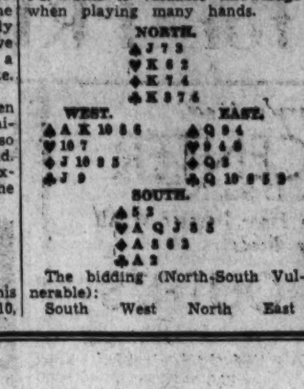
South's heart response may have been pretty weak. He may have held heart Q J x x x x and nothing much else, possibly a singleton somewhere. His partner's jump raise to three strongly urges him to go to game, and he is not to be blamed if he takes a deep breath and makes the plunge. So what is his dismay, while having strained to bid four, to hear his fatuous partner scuttle the ship with a "feeler" of five, and worse, accompany it with a beatific smile. "Why," South groans inwardly, "couldn't the consummate ass bid his own game when he knew, if I held a really respectable hand, I would have been fully capable of going to a slam myself?" But it's too late. The trap has been sprung.

Other chains of bidding, even among good players, reveal similar flaws or traps, perhaps not so flagrant, but none the less stupid. I once played with a young "expert" who proudly produced the following atrocity:

He	I
1 clubs	1 diamonds
2 clubs	2 no trump
6 clubs

Not only that, but when I put this very fair hand: Spades K J 10, hearts 10 8 7 4, diamonds A Q 10 9 8, clubs 3, he glared at me for having bid no trump with only one of his suit.

When your opponents hold five cards of a suit they probably will be divided 3-2; when they hold six cards the probable division is 4-2. This is valuable knowledge when playing many hands.



The bidding (North-South Vulnerable):

South	West	North	East
1 hearts	1 spades	2 hearts	Pass
4 hearts (final bid)

West opened the king and ace of spades. He led a third spade and South ruffed. South could afford to lose only one more trick. If each opponent had three diamonds he could not lose but one trick, but if South drew out all of East's trumps, than found four diamonds in one hand against him he would lose two tricks. South expected a 4-2 diamond division, so he led the ace and king of diamonds, then a small diamond. West won and led another diamond, but dummy trumped with the heart king. Then South drew trumps with the ace, queen, and jack and won the remaining tricks.

LINCOLN ZEPHYR

The new twelve-cylinder car that brings Ford and Lincoln standards of value to the medium-price field

ON SATURDAY the Lincoln Motor Company will present to this city the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR—an authentically modern motor car.

It has a 12-cylinder motor, a motor of the V-type, proved so efficient in Lincoln and Ford cars. This engine develops 110 horsepower. The wheelbase is 122 inches. The springbase is 133 inches. The bore and stroke is 2¾ inches by 3¾ inches. The roomy body accommodates six people and luggage.

The LINCOLN-ZEPHYR is, above all things, a new car, new in idea, performance, appearance. But it does share the background of experience, the creative engineering skill that have developed the Ford and the Lincoln cars. It is built in its own specially equipped division of the famous Lincoln precision plant. Workmen trained for years in building the Lincoln bring to it methods of precision they have learned so well. It reflects the Ford skill in organizing production that combines quantity with quality, that gives value at a price. Only thus could a car of such power, size and beauty be offered for so little. Only thus could it represent in its field as genuine a value as the Lincoln and Ford cars in theirs.

As you inspect the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR for the first time, you will be impressed by the sweeping beauty of its every line. It employs fully the principles of aero-dynamic design. Streamlines flow not only from end to end, but from side to side. But grace of line, in this case, does more than express a style trend. It reflects principles of design and construction as new as the car itself.

Steel trusses make possible the bridge, the airplane fuselage, the Marconi tower—structures of light weight but great strength. Steel trusses underlie the flowing curves of this new car. Body and frame are one, welded together. Here is a steel bridge, the body, a rigid structure, supported at two points, the front and rear springs. The roof and roof-members, with the floor and floor-members, carry the stresses.

The first result of this new construction, obviously, is great safety under all conditions.

Great comfort follows inevitably. The center of gravity is low; passengers step directly onto the floor of the car; and the weight of all passengers is poised between the axles. There is no "back-seat" ride.

Soft transverse springs minimize the "up-and-down" motion, the jounces, the bumps of the road that rob riding of comfort. We have no hesitancy in saying that this car, with its smooth V-12 power, offers a new rhythm of motoring. The gliding ride results naturally from its design.

Plan to spend at least an hour at the exhibit. A new understanding of the motor car awaits you. Arrange for a demonstration. Performance is as refreshing as appearance.

Cream Devised To Hide Flaws In Complexion

It Won't Come Off Unless Removed Purposely With Certain Fats.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THERE used to be a time when the girl whose face was marred by a birthmark, or even a super-abundance of freckles, felt that nothing short of a veil could hide her embarrassment from the world. Thank goodness, those dark ages have yielded to an era of light. Young women who have suffered from such causes have set to work to find means of covering discolorations to make them imperceptible.

One energetic person whose face was covered almost completely on one side by a livid birthmark, determined that her chances of making a business success would not be blasted because of this. For 14 years she worked on a formula for creating a cream which would cover her face, blend with the skin, and still clean the pores to function normally. Her patience has been rewarded, and now she puts on the market a delightfully inexpensive "cover-up cream!"

It is a perfectly harmless preparation which you may use with confidence. It simply spreads over the skin camouflaging the surface. Once on it will not come off unless purposely removed with certain fats. You may go swimming, you may brave a drenching downpour, you may open the storehouse of your tears, but the cream stays on. You put your make-up on over it and nonchalantly powder and rouge again without the slightest fear that your new complexion will give you away.

The cream, it is true, was prepared especially for women whose faces were marred by birthmarks. It is also welcomed, however, by those with unattractive flushed skins, freckles and moles.

It is available in a large size jar and also in the $1 purse size.

Notable Gift Sets.

ONE OF THE newest and certainly one of the most distinguished gift sets to greet our eyes this season is the small cigarette case and powder vanity in dull gilt finish. Both are surmounted with a regal crown in rhinestone and red enamel. Otherwise they are classically plain.

The young man who wanders in a daze up and down the aisles of a store hopelessly perplexed over what to select for the O. A. O. (one and only) will find nothing so sure to please her, and nothing in better taste than this exquisite little set.

Bargain Blades.

ORDINARILY there's nothing particularly exciting about razor blades safely packaged and in their rightful place on the store counter. This week, however, even in this placid state there's something exciting about them.

Swedish steel blades, guaranteed to be of the highest quality and already hair tested, are selling in packages of 50 for 49 cents.

ONE OF the least expensive and easiest ways to spice your wardrobe with variety lies in neckwear. New frocks have an added charm and versatility with new collars, and old frocks lose their forlorn air. Dull dresses are brightened by a bright collar and cuff set and serve you twice as well.

This season neckwear has been particularly fascinating. It has arrived in a variety of fabrics and many intriguing styles. A local store has just received a new batch right in the front ranks of chic. It's called petal neckwear.

Made of soft, transparent velvet, and cut into small petals or leaves, it is fashioned in jabot, Peter Pan, and a variety of other styles.

The colors? All the new rich, lovely fall shades.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4200, Extension 323, for further information, or write, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

Power of Women Called Gauge of Peace Progress

MISS DOROTHY DETZER.

Miss Dorothy Detzer, Secretary of World Anti-War Organization, Is Convinced Ranks Are Growing Daily in Europe.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

WOMEN ARE the housekeepers of the world. As the great conservators of humanity, wives and mothers are keenly concerned with running their homes smoothly and economically, without waste, with as little loss of lives of their men as possible.

In view of this, Miss Dorothy Detzer, secretary of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, believes you can gauge the progress of a country's peace program by the amount of power granted to women.

What she saw and heard when she attended the September meetings of the League of Nations Council, and what she observed in traveling through France and England later convinced her the army of women fighting for peace is gaining new recruits daily in Europe. She feels the struggle for a warless world must have the support of men as well as women, but she emphasized it particularly needs "woman's unique contribution" now, just as it did 20 years ago when Jane Addams and her followers sailed to The Hague to add their voices to the protest against the World War.

Women Gaining in France.

In this connection Miss Detzer pointed out, "In any country where peace movements are developing, you will find women have a strong voice in the government. In Norway, Sweden and Denmark where European women have had suffrage longest, the fight for peace is well under way. One of Hitler's first militaristic movements was to take suffrage from women. Up to now, work for world peace has gained few converts in Italy, Japan or France because women take no active part in the political life of those countries."

In France, recently, however, women are coming to the fore, Miss Detzer said. Women's organizations are strongly represented in "The People's Front," a united movement made up of all radical and liberal groups standing firmly against fascism and war. "Out of all the welter of imperialist rivalries and war preparations in Europe stands this organization," she said. "In its tenacity and strength lies the hope of Europe."

She also mentioned that the largest concourse of lobbyists at the League of Nations was made up of women from "The People's Front," who came primarily in interest of equal rights for women, but also worked against fascism and for world peace.

Thrilling Experience.

Miss Detzer described her visit to the League as being "a thrilling experience because there one sees the whole world in one room, with the obvious exceptions of Germany, Japan and the United States. But I was much impressed with the idea more women are needed in the League. There were only three women in the whole assembly, and they simply sat . . . and said nothing. More active women participants must be there before the most effective measure can be taken to rid the world of war."

Discussing the situation in Ethiopia from the standpoint of what she observed in Europe, Miss Detzer said she was rather unconcerned as to "whether Italian or British imperialism is victorious in that venture. Great powers, including the United States, have all at some time or other cut campaigns by the same pattern Italy is using today. I am far more interested in the fight against fascism," she said. "That is the issue closest at hand. War is the ultimate result of any dictatorship."

Among the prominent women Miss Detzer mentioned in the European peace movement are Mme. Camille Du Chene and Mlle. Roland (sister of Romaine Roland) in France; Miss Kathleen Courtney in Great Britain; Miss Gertrude Baer, a German refugee in Geneva, and Mme. Clara Ragaz in Switzerland.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Filled With Distrust of One She Calls Friend, Woman Asks Advice.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I have been much impressed by the frankness and delicacy which mark your handling of the various problems which are submitted to you for diagnosis and cure. Frankness and delicacy of mind make a rare combination in this world, and if more people possessed such qualities there would be fewer troubles to solve.

My problem is this: A woman friend of mine claims to be my friend, often takes me places, accepts my hospitality in turn and frequently praises my talents. We have had intimate, heart-to-heart talks of a nature which would seem to indicate mutual trust and loyalty. This woman is, to all outward appearances, the solid, practical, dependable, steady type of person who would never be expected to enter into a friendship with anyone who did not measure up in every way to her standards of what constitutes the right sort of person.

Yet she has, on several occasions, surprised me by indulging in a smile of double meaning at my expense; of ill-concealed derision; of a sort of knowing slyness when introducing me to other persons of her acquaintance; and on one occasion I actually saw her signal another person not to accept an invitation I was at the moment extending. I might go on at length, reciting other instances of such petty actions, but I am reluctant to dwell on them. Always when I am most unsuspecting I turn and catch her in such double-dealing. On one occasion I had gone with her to a certain gathering. At leave-taking I was waiting for her to join me and another person, when a prominent person standing nearby asked her if she could drive her home. She said, "Well, I am going with . . ." and surreptitiously placed her hand up to hide a sneaky smile which caused even the other lady to look quite puzzled.

She has invited me to go places with her and told me not to tell a certain other person that she has invited me; and this very person has also gone places with her and not told me, or rather, pointedly and guardedly, told me she has gone "with a friend." I assume both of us have been told much the same thing.

What do you advise in a case of this kind? Should I discount her more regrettable actions and continue to accept her friendship? Yet how can I go on giving a sincere, spontaneous friendship, knowing either that she is deliberately withholding her best, or that she is incapable of measuring up to my idealistic standard of friendship?

I know that all of us have faults; that it is not for us to seek to reform our friends, but where is the line to be drawn which separates tolerance from long suffering? Can she really be called a friend? If you think I am the one in need of doctoring, please tell me so and I will be glad to take my medicine.

Sincerely, FRIEND.

Imagination at Fault.

DEAR FRIEND: Judging from your letter which as you will observe has been freely blue-penciled and edited before being published, I should say that you are probably suffering from delusions of persecution and ill-usage at the hands of your friend. I honestly believe you should seek treatment from a psychiatrist. Any good physician should be able to help you, at least to the extent of directing you to the proper source of help M. H.

Seven 'Don'ts' Are Prescribed For Debutantes

Creed Offers Suggestions on Wardrobe, Etiquette and Jewelry.

RULE No. 1 for this year's successful debutante is—Be gay. And the seven "don't" she will scrupulously observe are:

Don't ever be conspicuous.

Don't talk all the time; try to listen.

Don't fail to laugh at a joke no matter how poor.

Don't stray from the herd.

Don't use too much make-up.

Don't get tied up with any one person this year.

Don't think life goes on like this indefinitely.

Ballroom Etiquette.

This creed of the 1935-36 debutante has been compiled by Mrs. Joseph Bryan III, of New York, who in an article "Chic and the Debutante" in the November issue of The Junior League Magazine tells of her investigations among the current crop of buds. As to ballroom etiquette she says:

"The new grip on the dance floor, instead of being the boy's arm's length away, is now decently close and in moments of fine frenzy the boy digs his chin into the top of the girl's head. Still, it sounds rather prettier than the forehead-to-forehead dancing of the past. They prattle constantly while they dance, but humming or dancing with the eyes closed is out. They sit out only when completely exhausted; this is the year to dance, dance, dance, little lady. The girls can stand them. Supper is served continuously, so there's no longer any of that anguish over supper partners."

The debutante's trousseau, according to Mrs. Bryan, consists of at least five party dresses, two dinner dresses, a couple of tea gowns or dinner pajamas and an evening wrap. For the daytime three wool or wool jersey dresses, two silk dresses and one street-length velvet or velveteen dress, one tailored suit and as many sweaters and skirts as she can buy. She needs three coats, one fur, a tweed and a rather dressy wool.

Coming-out Party Dress.

As for the coming-out party dress it needn't be white. It can be a shell pink or a seafoam green or a pale gold, according to Mrs. Bryan.

Regarding jewelry and cosmetics, she says:

"The debutante wears very little jewelry. Chandeliers for earrings are out; in their place, clips. Also clips in the shape of bugs, flowers or what-not are popular for the hair. A pearl necklace to the base of the throat if possible. Cosmetics are used sparingly; the girl no longer looks as if she had just buried her nose in a snowdrift. She may use mascara and eyeshadow, but does it to look as natural as possible. Deep red nail polish is hated by young boys, mostly because they feel it is the manly attitude."

Perfumes are apt to be light flower scents, merely dabbed on, Mrs. Bryan says. She adds that underneath debutantes wear some kind of a girdle and brassiere. "They wear panties and slips in the day time and combinations at night. And they would love to own a silver fox scarf and hope some day to own a mink coat."

Current debutantes, according to Mrs. Bryan, do not sleep all day, but go in for a strenuous regime of exercise and sports.

"Exercise is almost their fetish," she says. "Not because they worry about their shapes but because it makes them feel better. The new sports for the week-end are skeet shooting in the daytime and bowling at night. Moreover they all have great ambitions about what they're going to do with their lives.

Guards Model Overcoats Leading in Popularity

On the left is a brown herringbone tweed ulster, warm, roomy and good-looking. It is worn with a yellow cashmere scarf. The smart dark blue velour Guards coat on the second man is topped by the dark homburg hat that comports with it so well. A gray homburg on the third man sets off his fly-fronted chesterfield of light brown tweed. Note his widespread Duke of Kent collar.

Copied From Uniform, They Retain Smart Military Flair; Chesterfield Stays in Vogue; Mufflers Designed for Warmth.

By Robert Fairchild, of Men's Wear Magazine.

OVERCOAT STYLES THIS SEASON afford a clearcut instance of what an "authentic style background" really is. The Guards overcoat, which is the leading style in overcoats for fall and winter, is copied directly from the uniform worn by the different brigades of His Majesty's Guards, who are perhaps the most-patterned-after set of well-dressed young men in London. Transferred to mufti, the lines of the Guards overcoat still retain the smart military flair that distinguishes it as a uniform.

The leading characteristics of the Guards coat (incidentally, it is properly spelt with a capital and without an apostrophe) are as follows: A half belt gathering the full back, an inverted center pleat that starts between the shoulders and descends the entire length of the garment, a waisted effect to give additional slimness, a good length, and plenty of fullness to the skirt.

The Guards overcoat is usually double-breasted, and a top style color this autumn and winter is dark blue, both for day and evening wear. Rich cashmeres and velours are the most suitable materials.

Darker Colors Popular.

Another popular—and authentic—style is the double or single breasted box coat, usually in tweed. The back may or may not have a belt, according to your preference. Then there are the raglans, which carry a less formal air about them, the sporty-looking sleeve head giving ease of movement for the more relaxed hours of the week.

There is still another generally popular model in the three or four-button-front ulster, made up in tweeds or heavy fleece materials, as illustrated. This big roomy coat is warm and looks it.

Of course, no discussion of overcoat styles can be complete without mentioning the chesterfield, in single or double-breasted style, the former preferred in fly-fronted cut. Light brown tweed is liked for this model. However, the general trend this season is to darker colors.

Woolen Scarfs for Warmth.

Cold weather calls not only for a heavier coat on one's back but for protection of one's throat against the shrill blast. The muffler's primary requisite is that it be warm. This season's styles fulfill that requirement admirably. The best style is wool, either cashmere or shetland. The cashmeres are solid colors, the shetlands plaids or checked patterns.

Bright color knitted wools are also seen on the well dressed, and an increasingly popular style is the string-knit scarf in solid color.

The silk scarf is a more formal variety. Jacquarded, solid color, or figured silks are preferred for evening wear—and for the more austere occasions of the day.

Caution Advised In Meeting Test Of Motherhood

Unpleasant Accompaniment May Thus Be Avoided, Says Dr. Cutter.

Pregnancy.
By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

FOR the most part pregnancy is a normal physiological process. Naturally the resistance of the mother is put to a strenuous test, but nature has surrounded motherhood with so many precautions that things rarely go wrong. We do hear of cases of pernicious vomiting and now and then of eclampsia (convulsions of pregnancy). But if the prospective mother will keep closely in touch with her physician and insist upon frequent examinations involving the urin, blood pressure, state of nutrition, etc., most of the unpleasant accompaniments will be avoided.

A rather unusual complication is the development of neuritis followed by paralysis. Even this condition rarely appears alone. It occurs occasionally as a result of attacks of pernicious vomiting, which rather abruptly ceases on the first sign of paralysis.

The patient may complain first of weakness and numbness in the legs, later in the arms. The heart is rather more rapid than normal, and sometimes mental changes will be observed. The most striking symptom is a paralysis of certain muscle groups of the leg or arm, with inability to raise the foot or hand. On examination, tenderness over the nerve trunks may be detected. If the disease is unchecked paralysis may extend to the abdominal and the chest muscles. Among the nervous reactions are mild excitability, insomnia, and forgetfulness.

The suggestion has been offered, and with reasonable prospect of accuracy, that the condition is due to the lack of some important vitamin in the diet, possibly vitamin B, inasmuch as the symptoms somewhat resemble those of beri-beri, which is considreed a vitamin deficiency disease. It may be that vitamin B is not the only missing food factor, and that the supply of other vitamins in inadequate. This is understandable when we consider that the appetite of the pregnant woman is occasionally finicky or capricious and that loss of food through vomiting, unless promptly replaced, may account for the absence of indispensable food elements.

The treatement necessarily is dietary. This means a well balanced diet, plus large quantities of vitamins, chiefly vitamin B. This latter element may be supplied by yeast or yeast vitamin tablets. Foods such as butter, fresh vegetables, orange juice, and even cod liver oil should be given on the assumption that vitamins B may not be the only deficiency. Most of these women show some anemia and hence the use of liver and iron may be required. If severe pain accompanies the loss of nerve function some hypnotic will be found useful.

Recent reports indicate that relief has followed hte use of brewer's yeast. The case is cited of a severe neuritis complicating pregnancy, in which the paralysis increased steadily until the patient was placed on one ounce of brewer's yeast three imes a day. Orange juice, cod liver oil and calcium gluconate were also given. Within a few days marked improvement was observed. The mental conditions cleared, the pulse rate dropped and the patient gained strength rapidly. Pregnancy progressed to a normal termination.

We may infer, therefore, that the feeding of generous quantities of vitamins—particularly vitamin B—during the entire pregnancy period will prevent the onset of neuritis and probably influence favorably excessive vomiting. Fortunately this complication is not common.

Nuts Add Food Value to the Diet

With Meat Prices Soaring, They Form Excellent Substitute.

By Elisabeth Ellicott Poe.

HALLOWEEN with its hobgoblins, witches riding on broomsticks, pumpkin faces and all its eerie delights would not be the same entrancing holiday without the inevitable accompaniment of apples and nuts served at its feasts.

The use of nuts at Halloween time is a custom of long standing come into being probably because this season of the year is harvest time for nuts.

Nature has stored away many worthwhile food elements in nuts. Take the walnut, for instance. The walnut in any of its several varieties is a high-protein food—with vitamins and minerals thrown in. To inexpensive main course dishes it adds the quality of real nourishment and makes even more delicious vegetable loaves, noodle rings, creamed sweet potatoes and other dishes. In these days when meat is mounting in price, nuts form an admirable substitute for meat in a multitude of ways.

Salads and Desserts.

To return to the walnut, it has other charms as well, for it may be used in salads and desserts, giving these dishes additional food value and affording savings elsewhere in the menus.

Some one has written that the pecan is one of nature's perfect foods. Every inch of the pecan meat is crammed with diet wealth.

From one of our Latin-American neighbors Americans have borrowed a native nut, what is known as the Brazil nut, which is growing in popular favor with homemakers.

Nor must be forgotten at this season, the chestnut, pride of many a farm home and the delight of children searching for the rough burrs which conceal the golden brown chestnuts inside. The chestnut lends itself particularly in poultry and other dressings and the Thanksgiving turkey with its chestnut dressing is an epicurean feast for all.

Clip out these unusual recipes for nut dishes for your home-made cook book.

Chocolate Nut Frosting.

Melt four squares of bitter chocolate, add one cupful of sugar, 2 tablespoonfuls of butter, ¾ cupful of sweet cream. Boil until it forms a soft ball, add one cupful of chopped walnuts and stir until right consistency for icing.

Pecan Pie.

One cupful of corn sirup, 1 cupful pecan pieces, ½ cup granulated sugar, 3 eggs, 1 teaspoonful of vanilla extract, ½ teaspoonful of salt.

Beat eggs slightly, add sugar, nuts, sirup, flavoring and salt. Mix well. Place in a pan lined with partly baked pie crust. Place in a moderate oven (325 F.) 40 to 50 minutes. The pecans will float to the top forming a firm crust that will brown nicely, if baked slowly.

Hazelnut Charlotte.

Two cupfuls of milk, 2 cupfuls of double cream whipped, 3 tablespoonfuls dissolved gelatin, 8 yolks of eggs, 1 cupful of sugar, 1 cupful toasted hazelnuts, 2 teaspoonful vanilla flavoring.

Stir sugar and yolks in a sauce pan, add the milk gradually. Stir on fire until contents start to thicken. Remove, add flavoring and gelatin. Strain into a basin and set on ice until all this begins to set. Then mix in the whipped cream and hazelnuts and pour into forms. Place in refrigerator. After a few hours this may be served.

Chestnut Dressing.

1 tablespoon soup stock
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons cream and 1 teaspoon salt

Cover chestnuts with hot water long enough to soften shells, drain and with a sharp knife remove shell and outer skin. Cover chestnuts again with boiling water. Cook until perfectly tender. Drain, press through ricer or fine sieve, add cream, melted butter, soup stock and salt to season well. Mix thoroughly. If soup stock is not convenient, more cream may be used. The dressing should not be too soft.

Four Unusual Recipes Are Recommended to Housewives.

Entries in Weekly Contest Are Due Tomorrow Morning

THIS week The Post is offering five prizes of $1 each for the best recipes submitted in its contest for meat substitutes. If your recipe wins one of these weekly awards it will be submitted with the other prize winning recipes in this contest series to determine the winners of the three final awards, a hand-carved wooden salad bowl with matching serving fork and spoon, a combination cake server smartly styled of non-tarnishing chromium and white porcelain, and a Dutch oven.

Your meat substitute recipe may include seafood, eggs, cheese, mushrooms, or any food that will make it adequate when meat is omitted from the menu. It should be mailed to Dorothea Duncan in care of The Washington Post before tomorrow.

The names of the prize winners and their recipes will be printed in next Tuesday's edition of The Post on the food page. The new contest subject for next week will be announced on the food page Saturday.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

THE BEST FAMILIES have them. But if the skeletons would just stay in their closets, it would be all right. The trouble is they often intrude on the prettiest of rooms . . . . that's why interesting small wood boxes, covered jars and a repertoire of lovely screens always come in handy for tucking things out of sight in a hurry.

• • • •

A. N. WRITES: I need some ideas about changes in my living room. I'm planning to get several new pieces of furniture and I know there are a good many little things that would help the effect. The rug is a Kirman and lovely with ivory ground and blues and rose shades in the pattern . . . the walls are powder blue and the furniture I already have is old-fashioned walnut and rosewood. The draperies are flowered and the curtains ivory. What type of new things would you add? . . . I need a comfortable sofa, a new easy chair and a coffee table. Then the fireplace is an eyesore . . . it is gas burning and we enjoy it on brisk days, but it is some kind of unattractive material that I'd like to hide between times. What would you suggest? And what accessories for the room.

• • • •

ANSWER: I'd have the new sofa in a soft deep old rose and the new chair in lilac or wisteria. A Queen Anne coffee table would go nicely with the old things that you have, and why don't you have a needlepoint firescreen to go in front of the fireplace? I'd have accessories for this room in silver.

Hikers to Scale Highest Peaks Of Blue Ridge

Record Turnout Expected for Skyland-Thornton Gap Trip Sunday.

By Robert Shosteck.

A record turnout is expected on Sunday's Wanderbird hike along the Appalachian Trail from Skyland to Thornton Gap, a 7½ mile trip along the crest of the Blue Ridge Mountains. The itinerary includes some of the highest peaks of the Blue Ridge—Mary's Rock (3514 feet) and The Pinnacle (3720 feet), as well as the interesting old copper mine in the vicinity of Skyland.

Club members and readers of The Post who wish to make this trip will meet at 7:30 a. m. in front of The Post Building. Tickets must be bought at The Post counter by 7 p. m. Saturday at $2.50 each. No reservations will be accepted otherwise. The buses will leave by 7:40 a. m. and reach Skyland about 1. Hikers should bring lunch and a cup for coffee. Supper will be had at Washington, Va., at 50 cents a plate. Hiking shoes and durable clothing are mandatory on a mountain trail.

The 10-mile ride along the Skyline Drive will afford excellent views of the valley below and of distant ranges. Those planning the 7½-mile trip with the many steep climbs will start from Skyland, in Kettle Canyon, while the less experienced hikers who want a shorter trip will start from Hughes River Gap.

From Skyland the hikers will pass in rapid succession Furnace Spring, Stony Man Mountain, the old copper mine, and Little Stony Man. About two miles north is Hughes River Gap (3,103 feet) and after another two miles the pinnacle will be reached. A rather steep trail ascends to its 3,720-foot peak, where one of the finest views of the surrounding countryside will be obtained. Mary's Rock, near the end of the hike, offers another challenge to those who are adept at mountain climbing. From Thornton Gap there will be a short drive to Washington, Va., for dinner, and return to the city by 10 p. m.

A supply of the Potomac Trail Book is still on hand and copies may be obtained at The Post counter at 50 cents each. The winter hike schedule, published this week, contains notices of the astronomy group meetings. This Wanderbird group will be led by B. P. Sharpless of the U. S. Naval Observatory. Copies of the schedule may be obtained at The Post counter, or by writing to the club, care of The Post.

10,000 Mummers Stage Gala Parade As 60,000 Watch

$700 Prizes Distributed in 18th Annual Fete at Hagerstown.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 31.—Ten thousand gayly costumed adults and children marched in the annual Alsatia mummer's parade here tonight, while the streets along the 2-mile route were lined with crowds estimated at 60,000.

A children's division, a section of elaborate, and another of comic, costumed mummers; an adults' division, elaborate and comic; organized bodies, elaborate and unique, interspersed by a score of bands and drum corps, made up the mile-long parade.

The parade passed a reviewing stand in the public square, where a committee of judges from nearby cities selected the winners in the various divisions, who were the recipients of $700 in cash prizes.

Street Dance Held.

The entire line of march was flood-lighted and hundreds of pennants and lights decorated the square.

Members of the Alsatia Club, men's social organization, which has sponsored the parade for 18 years, served as marshals. The parade was led by a corps of mounted policemen, colors and color guard, and Mayor I. M. Wertz and other city officials.

The Municipal Band played for a street dance in the public square following the parade.

Among the bands in the line of march were the Municipal, of Hagerstown; the Keedysville, Quincy Orphanage, Myersville, Wayne, of Waynesboro, Pa.; Waynesboro High School, Brunswick, Md.; Junior Y. M. C. A., of Hagerstown; Rohrersville, Md.; Mercersburg, Pa.; Harmond, Md., and a number of drum corps.

Halloweeen Queen

MISS MADELYN H. BORDEN, above, reigned last night over Charlottesville's celebration of Halloween. She was crowned queen of the festivities my Mayor W. D. Haden preceding the queen's Holloween ball.

Charlottesville Gay

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 31.—This city's second attempt at an organized Halloween celebration was greeted tonight by a frolic-seeking crowd of several thousand, augmented by over 2,000 students from the university, which swirled through downtown streets in the wake of a parade of elaborately decorated cars and novel floats and stood on tiptoe to watch the exercises later in Lee Park.

It was a festival crowd, including a large masked and costumed juvenile contingent, which came forth in the early evening to indulge in the usual Main Street harlequinade and to watch the parade, which started near the university and ended on Jefferson street near Lee Park.

High points of the revelry were the coronation of Miss Madelyn H. Borden as Queen of Halloween, the queen's ball, held at the dancing pavilion at Fry's Spring, and a square dance at the city armory on East Market street.

The queen was crowned by Mayor W. D. Haden. Members of her court were Misses Lois Vaughan, Adelaide Rhoades, Betty Lacy, Madeline Shackleford and Lucy Bell Linton.

Miss Borden, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Borden, is a member of the senior class at Lane High School.

Following the Lee Park exercises, many revelers followed the queen's flower-decked float to the dancing pavilion at Fry's Spring, where the grand march was at 10 o'clock by the queen and escort. Over 400 persons attended this affair and a lesser number the square dance in the city armory.

More than a half-hundred organizations and floats made up the parade, which was led by the State motor police, followed by Chief Marshall Randolph H. Perry and his aids. Then came the Orange Band, city officials, queen's float and Monticello Guard. The city fire department, with the Charlottesville Municipal Band, marched as a unit in the same formation that has won them several trophies in recent years for their appearance.

Some of the organizations participating were [illegible] Monticello Guard, Lo[illegible] of Moose, Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, Virginia Public Service Co., Southeastern Public Service Co., Belmont Mission Playground, Brooks Park Playground, Knothole Gang, McIntire Park, Elks, Kiwanis Club, Community Broadcasting Co., Southern Auto Supply Co., Virginia Workshop for the Blind, Orange Band, Municipal Band, Miller School Band and Drum Corps, Camp Fire Girls, city officials and floats representing Gordonsville and the Crozet High School.

State Trooper Sues After Taxicab Injury

Warrenton, Va., Oct. 31 (AP).—Suit for $500 damages has been filed by State Trooper Thomas F. Stafford against Clarence J. Garsons, of Washington, who is awaiting trial on charges of striking the officer with a taxicab on the Alexandria pike and failing to stop.

Adolph Hohensee, of Washington, alleged owner of the taxi, is named as a principal defendant with Garsons, and H. T. Howell, owner of the garage where the taxi is now stored, is named co-defendant.

Nice Ponders Special Call To Assembly

Emergency Session Seen Likely to Consider Relief Problem.

U.S. Funds to Stop After Dec. 1; WPA Strike Settlement Near.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Oct. 31.—An immediate emergency session of the Legislature to consider unemployment relief after the last of the Federal funds are exhausted on December 1 was seen as a possibility here today.

While this was developing, indications were given that the Cumberland Works Progress Administration strike may be near a settlement. Also during the day, Harry Greenstein, State Relief Administrator, was assured by the Federal Government that direct relief funds for November would be provided.

Gov. Nice said an immediate session of the General Assembly might be necessary. A special session for next spring already had been forecast, but the immediate summons was mentioned officially for the first time today.

Date to Be Set Monday.

The date of the extra session will be settled after a meeting the Governor has called for Monday. Legislative and financial leaders of the State have been invited.

The possibility of increased yields from the receipts tax and the number of men to be employed on various Federal work-relief projects during the next four weeks will be discussed at the meeting. The Governor said he would ask Federal officials for a forecast of the number of men who might be employed.

The Governor pointed out that the tax depends on the amount of business done in the State, and said that, so far, it had only been collected on the slight summer trade. He is hopeful that collections for November will be higher, but is not sure they will be sufficient to care [illegible] by the Federal building program.

Comptroller William S. Gordy, jr., announced this week that the tax collections for the [illegible] probably would run [illegible] cent less than had been anticipated. Part of the yield is devoted to direct-relief, and part to old-age pensions.

The Governor's invitations to the meeting were sent to Joseph Healy, Howard Bruce, Baltimore banker; Comptroller Gordy; Hooper S. Miles, State treasurer; Lansdale G. Sasscer, president of the Senate; Emanuel Gorfine, Speaker of the House; Kent Mullikin, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee; J. Allan Coad, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee; J. David Baile, Republican floor leader in the Senate; Thomas L. Popp, Republican floor leader in the House, and Herbert R. O'Conor, Attorney General.

The Cumberland WPA strike will be discussed Saturday in the office of Francis H. Dryden, State head of the WPA. It was arranged after William A. Miller, president of the Allegany Trades Council, had phoned Dryden. During these conversations, it was intimated that a compromise might be reached which would return the 100 men who left their jobs last Monday.

F.F.V.'s Traced to Stone Age!

By the Associated Press.

Traces of the original "first families of Virginia" have been uncovered by the Smithsonian Institution.

From a number of stone tools and hunting implements found in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, David I. Bushnell, jr., Smithsonian ethnologist, has re-created a partial picture of people who preceded by several centuries or longer the Indians found by the English colonists.

Indications are that these ancient Americans may have lived at the same time as the Folsom men, identified by peculiar shaped hunting points, who are believed to have been the first settlers in North America, long before the dawn of even verbal history as told in old folk tales.

The first families left only faint traces of their existence for present-day archeologists to puzzle over. Their artifacts were found on camp and village sites which were also occupied by later peoples and were mixed with the relics of the latter.

In many cases the settlers who followed after the first wave of habitation found some of the ancient implements and converted them for their own use. However, Bushnell said, there are clear differences between the artifacts of the two peoples, which prove that they could not have been made by the same artisans.

To illustrate how the archeologist defines periods of habitation, Bushnell showed a flaked, ax-like object made of diabase, a native rock found near the Rapidan River in Orange County, Virginia.

After it was originally made and used, he said, it was abandoned or lost, the surface becoming weathered through exposure. Centuries later another warrior or hunter found it, rechipped the cutting edges and use it again. However, the surface exposed by the second sharpening became only slightly altered by the weather, even though it had again lain on the ground for at least 250 years before it was found during the last year.

British Solon's 'Gibraltar Trip' Leads to U. S.

Parliament Member Sailed as Purser; Lands in Baltimore.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Oct. 31.—Cecil Frederick Pike, British Parliament member, who set sail last month from England for Gibraltar, passed through Baltimore today—en route to New York and England without ever having touched Gibraltar.

And, while he sailed the seas, an election was falling due in his own Attercliffe division of Sheffield.

It all came about when Pike shipped as purser aboard the British freighter Eastmoor with arrangements to leave the ship at [illegible] well until the freighter sailed from Poti, Russia, October 2.

Owners of the vessel encountered difficulties in charting the course for Gibraltar, so the ship continued to Baltimore with its cargo of iron ore—and the member of Parliament.

Pike received his discharge as a member of the crew here today, arranged with the British consul for his clearance from this country and left for New York to sail on the Berengaria at midnight.

Man's Auto Is Stolen As He Sees Sick Wife

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 31.—The automobile in which A. T. Holliday, of near Winchester, Va., drove to this city to see his wife, in a hospital, was stolen from its parking place near the hospital Tuesday evening while the owner was in the hospital. Police later found the automobile, badly by hard driving, abandoned near the city limits.

Military Board Probes Death Of Army Office

Lieut. Proctor Found Dead of Bullet Wound at Fort Hoyle, Md.

By the United Press.

Fort Hoyle, Md., Oct. 31.—A military board today began an investigation into the death of Lieut. Arthur B. Proctor 3d, Regular Army officer, who was found, a bullet wound in his head, in his office here.

Lieut. Proctor died a short time later in the post hospital. An Army surgeon said the wound apparently had been self-inflicted with the weapon found at his side—a .32-caliber revolver.

Proctor was attached to Battery F, Sixth Field Artillery, and was officer of the day. It was his duty last night to visit the offices of the various batteries of the regiment stationed at the post here. He presumably had gone to his own office in line of duty when he was found shot. Members of Battery F heard the shot and found him.

The lieutenant, who is survived by his wife and his father, Capt. Arthur B. Proctor, of the Army Quartermaster Corps, was graduated from West Point in 1934.

Late yesterday Lieut. Proctor was an usher at the marriage of a former classmate, Lieut. William Harvey Wise, of the Army Air Corps, to Miss Helen Beall Powell, daughter of Capt. Frank Egerton Powell, at Bel Air.

He was born October 14, 1910, and was a native of Pleasantville, N. Y.

School Board Acts to Force End of Strike

Warrants Claiming Law on Attendance Was Broken Issued.

Rebellious Parents Ready to Face Hearing at Frederick.

By the Associated Press.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 31.—Determined to end the two-month-old Broad Run School "strike," precipitated by its consolidation program, the Frederick County Board of Education invoked the State compulsory school attendance law today and had warrants served on three patrons of the school.

Charging violation of the attendance law, the warrants were issued by Magistrate Walter E. Sinn at the request of Attendance Officer Gertrude Smith. The school board has said this was the "only course open" to it to end the strike.

The warrants were served on Rodney S. Huffer and Harry Sowers, trustees of the school, and Charles D. Beachley, a patron. A hearing was set for Monday.

Despite this move, Beachley said the strike still was on and parents were taking their children to the now abandoned Broad Run School, as they have done for seven weeks, in protest against its consolidation with one at Middletown.

Ready for Warrants.

"We were prepared for the warrants," Beachley said, "and we will be prepared to answer them Monday morning. We do not understand why they should serve warrants on only three patrons instead of 13, but we will be there."

Leslie N. Coblentz, president of the school board, had written Gov. Harry W. Nice that children of the protesting parents had been without instruction for seven weeks and that although transportation had been provided to Middletown, "the parents have elected to refuse these facilities."

"It's not our fault this strike is being kept up," Beachley said in answer to Coblentz. "Mr. Coblentz says it is not up to the school board to stop it. We didn't start it, but we're going to stop it, if there's any way to stop it."

Members of Delegation.

The three men named in the warrants were members of a delegation that conferred last week with Gov. Nice in an effort to end the strike. Coblentz wrote the Governor the information the delegation gave him was "one-sided, erroneous in part and withholds the facts favorable" to the consolidation.

Answering Beachley's assertion that he did not understand why only three were named in the warrants, Superintendent of Education Eugene W. Pruitt said their children comprised a large proportion of those on strike.

Guilty of Drowning Baby, Mother Freed

Staunton, Va., Oct. 31 (AP).—Mrs. Pauline Carter Hains, 22, was today given a suspended prison term of five years when she pleaded guilty before Judge Joseph A. Glasgow in Augusta Circuit Court here to charges of drowning her baby at Waynesboro July 27.

One witness was heard, Mrs. O. W. Robertson, probation officer, who testified to the "excellent character" of the defendant.

Judge Glasgow remarked that the drowning had been done by the then unwed mother "under most trying conditions."

"I feel like this court should show this woman such leniency as is possible under the law," he said in adjudging her guilty of second degree murder.

Mrs. Haines was accompanied in the courtroom by her husband, Rexford Haines, against whom seduction charges were dropped when they were married October 17.

Former Queen Of Apple Fete Elopes to Wed

Mary Jo Mathews Bride of Studio Executive in Film Romance.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 31.—Mary Jo Mathews, former beauty queen at West Virginia University and the 1929 apple blossom festival queen at Winchester, Va., who for the past several years has been on the stage and screen, eloped from Hollywood to Yuma, Ariz., with Arthur Rush, studio executive, and was married, according to news reaching here.

It was her second marriage. She was divorced several years ago from Charles Coleman, of Pratt, this State, [illegible] marriage taking place wh[illegible] student at the university.

Mrs. Rush is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Mathews, of Mannington, W. Va. Following her graduation from the university, where she was twice selected as the most beautiful girl on the campus, she began her stage career in New York and one of her early appearances was with George White's "Scandals." Later she went to Hollywood and was placed under contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. After appearing in several pictures she left that organization to free lance.

Rush is a director of the recording studio and studio service department of the RCA-Victor Co.

Police Seek Night Slayer Of Comrade

Baltimore Patrolman Is Mysteriously Killed on Rounds.

Had Gone on Duty After Attending Party for His Godson.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Oct. 31.—Baltimore's ace police officers worked today to find the murderer of a fellow officer who went from his godson's birthday party to die in line of duty.

Two bullet holes in his body, his loaded pistol in its holster and his burning flashlight clutched in his hand, the body of Patrolman Arthur Malinofski was found in a neighborhood business section here early today.

A milk carrier, his attention attracted by the beams from Malinofski's flashlight, discovered the body. He notified police and an immediate dragnet was thrown about the neighborhood with no results.

Other than five empty shells found between the body and the officer's police car and a pair of gloves found nearby, police have no clews.

Residents of the neighborhood, including 15-year-old Betty Irvin, daughter of Robert Irvin, secretary to Gov. Harry W. Nice, told of having heard shots, the sound of running feet and voices shortly before the body was found.

Police introduced the theory that Malinofski had surprised persons attempting to break into a store. Part of his nightly duty was the inspection of stoor doors.

It was evident that Malinofski had no chance to defend himself. His pistol was firmly placed in his holster and the gun had not been fired.

Malinofski joined the police force in 1926. He was married in 1922 and is survived by his widow.

Last night he attended a party given in celebration of the fifteenth birthday of his nephew, Malinofski, the boy's godfather, left the party and went directly on duty.

Finds Fla. Town Becoming Noted For Mat Stunts

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The thriving little community of Lake Worth, Fla., which according to an anonymous correspondent is located eight miles south of Palm Beach and 60 miles north of Miami, is rapidly becoming to wrestling what Winsted, Conn., is becoming in weird happenings and droll stories in the United States.

In fact, with the keen, far-reaching eye of the seer, I seem to vision Lake Worth as eventually becoming the wrestling center of the United States, a metropolis built up on grunt and groan to which all true wrestling fans will make annual pilgrimage. Already, the methods used by one wrestler to vanquish another are becoming legendary. My same anonymous correspondent writes me that he was present the evening that Jack (One Man Gang) Adams chloroformed his opponent, and he writes further, describing what has come to be known as the Lake Worth body slam.

The Lake Worth body slam was apparently used by One Man Gang on Bull Firpo. Excusing himself on some pretext, One Man Gang is supposed to have run down to his dressing room, secured a Model T Ford hub-cap wrench, returned to the ring, parted Firpo's hair with it and laid him away among the lillies-of-the-valley.

There is another variant to the story that One Man Gang never did leave the ring, but entered it in the first place with a small blackjack or kosh fastened to the rear of his trunks on the inside by a small elastic band. When the proper moment came he reached inside for it, and, using the Hary Vardon grip, went into the rough surrounding Firpo's skull and apparently accomplished his purpose in three strokes, for one under par, or a birdie.

THERE is, apparently, a high feeling of honor pervading these Lake Worth bouts, which seem to be promoted by the American Legion post there, and there is an understanding among the wrestlers that a high standard of originality must be maintained, and that no wrestler shall be guilty of stealing another wrestler's stuff. Even finer than that, I am told, no real Lake Worth wrestler would demean himself by using the same stunt twice, at least not in that community. For instance, chloroform and blackjack or hupcap wrench is exclusively the property of Jack (One Man Gang) Adams. He thought them up, worked over the details in his study at night, developed them and brought them to tender fruition.

They remain his property. He will never use them again at Lake Worth. No other wrestler will use them either. Thus, a totally new breed of wrestlers is being developed at Lake Worth—wrestlers with brains, wrestlers with imagination. The day of brawn and sweat is done. There should be a monument in Lake Worth in whose quiet, palm-fronded center took place the renaissance of wrestling.

There was, for instance, the delightful occasion during a match involving Tiger Thomas and Madman Wilson in which, I understand, the Tiger was having a shade the worst of it due to the fact that Madman was dissecting one of his ears with his teeth while with both hands he was exerting playful pressure on the Tiger's windpipe. The referee was standing over to one side, trying to remember the telephone number of the coroner. At this juncture, a large, ugly stranger climbed into the ring, kicked Madman in the side with a No. 13 shoe, punched him in the jaw, and began gouging him in the eye.

THE referee, enraged by this untoward interference from an extraneous source, strolled over and said "Tsk Tsk Tsk Tsk . . . here here, what is going on here?" There might have been serious trouble had not Tiger Thomas recovered sufficiently, thanks to the respite, to explain. "Leave him alone," he said, simply. "That is Bull Thomas, my brother. He is helping me. Blood is thicker than water, you know."

Thereupon the two of them

Columbia Probes Counterfeit Tickets

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 31 (AP).—With an attendance of 85,000 expected police today investigated a report that 2,000 counterfeit tickets for Saturday's game between Ohio State and Notre Dame had been brought to Columbus.

Police Chief Fred F. Kundts asserted that he received information the tickets had been printed in Philadelphia and that at least three men were attempting to sell them here.

"We expect to have these men under arrse tbefore night," Kundts said.

James Renick, sports publicity director of the university, said anyone buying a ticket now is doing so at his own risk.

"We are absolutely out of tickets and haven't had any in a week," he said.

Middies End Hard Work; Crippled

Injuries to Hurt Team in Princeton Battle, Hamilton Says.

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 31.—The Naval Academy football squad had its last hard practice tonight before leaving to meet the Princeton Tigers at Princeton Saturday.

Tom Hamilton, head coach, gave the players a program of rough individual work and a short period of scrimmage, stressing tackling and blocking. The Navy mentor has been paying considerable attention to tackling for the last several weeks, seeking to strengthen what many feel to be a weak link in the sailor machine.

"We have gone through a tough wee and have had a number of injuries which are going to hurt us," Hamilton said. "The progress has been slow. The week's work was just another preparatory period for the opponents the team must face. Our schedule is so fixed that we can't point for anyone but Army and that is what we are doing."

Plenty o fRough Work.

The Navy players will continue to get plenty of rough contact work each week. "We have a very inexperienced team and can't afford to knock off scrimmaging," Hamilton said. "The only way the players can learn to play high-class football is to keep on playing football."

Fay E. Wilsie, 175-pound youth, who has been spilling Dick Pratt at quarterback for two years, has been shifted to the fullback position and may start the Princeton game. Hamilton has been using him practically every night in his veteran backfield with Pratt, Tom King and Sneed Schmidt. Wilsie is a good defensive and offensive player.

43-Year Series.

The Navy-Princeton series has been carried on over a 43-year period and every meeting has developed into a battle. Navy knows from experience that a Princeton tea mis never defeated until the closing whistle and will have to keep goin gfull force throughout the game.

Penn Avenue Upsets Beall Field Ball Team

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 31.—Scoring all the points, Winnie Troutman was responsible for Pennsylvania Avenue High School providing the biggest upset of the 1935 season in the Western Maryland Interscholastic Fieldball League, when it defeated Beall High School, of Frostburg, 10 to 6, and knocked the latter out of a tie for first place with Central, of Lonaconing.

John Llewellyn's field goal from the 28-yard line two minutes before the final whistle enabled the Beall soccer team to come from behind and win its final game of the season from Penn, 4 to 3.

Rice Arrives Today for G.W. Tilt

To Practice at Stadium; Will Be Favored at 2-1, at Least.

Pixlee to Let Colonials Gamble All in Effort to Top Visitors.

A FEW derelict tokens of Halloween's black magic of the night before and the hoot Owls of Rice will be camping on George Washington's doorstep today as the Colonials conclude preparations for tomorrow's big game with the big Southwestern eleven at Griffith Stadium.

Fresh from their well-deserved victory over Texas last week, but not so fresh from a 2½-day train ride, the Owls are scheduled to arrive at noon today on a special train bearing a delegation of several hundred rooters. After official welcoming ceremonies and luncheon, Coach Jimmy Kitts will send the players through a light workout at the stadium. Tonight they will be guests of a downtown theater along with members of the G. W. squad.

Alumni Arriving.

Meanwhile, the vanguard of a host of George Washington alumni began filtering into the city for the home-coming festival, which opened last night in conjunction with a civic Halloween celebration and will be concluded tomorrow with the football game and later a dance. The squad will have plenty of moral support when it lines-up against the invaders.

Handicapped by injuries to Tuffy Leemans, who still shows traces of a leg injury, and Ben Plotnicki, second best back, George Washington is ill-prepared to welcome its truculent guest in accepted football style. Rice will be at least a 2-1 favorite at game-time, since most observers believe it will down George Washington as decisively as did Alabama. But if prevailing odds cast a pall of gloom over the Colonial camp, it was not perceptible.

Ready to Gamble.

Head Coach Jim Pixlee has announced that the team will be given a full rein tomorrow. It can do things heretofore frowned on, and unorthodox football will, in fact, be encourage. The rotund Pixlee is ready to gamble with the football gods for the first time since he assumed command of the squad.

New plays built around Plotnicki may have to be abandoned if his injured arm does not respond to treatment. Thus, the attack will center on the old running and passing game of which Leemans is the keystone.

To the frenzied shouting of its student supporters, Catholic University's untied and undefeated football team left late yesterday afternoon for Chicago, where it will risk its unsullied record against DePaul.

The entire squad of 31 players made the trip, but three regulars, Bob Makofske, fullback; "Irish" Carroll, halfback, and Capt. Ed Karpowich, tackle, probably will be unable to play because of injuries. Coach Dutch Bergman, who has had a bad case of jitters since the opening game, left in a pessimistic mood, expecting every misfortune to befall the squad.

DePaul is rated as one of the Midwest's best little teams and on a basis of past performances figures to give Catholic a close battle.

Grid Injuries On Increase in Virginia

Changes in Style of Play Are Not Responsible, Coaches Agree.

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 31.—Football injuries have been more numerous at Virginia colleges this year but coaches agreed today that the changes in the style of play could not be held responsible for the larger casualty list.

From Richmond, William and Mary, Washington and Lee, Hampden-Sydney and Roanoke College come reports of more injuries. Only Virginia and V. M. I. reported fewe injuries, while casualty lists at V. P. I. and Emory and Henry were about even with last year's toll.

Althougfih only the head injury to Abraham Tut Aagasheff, an end, has been felt by the Roanoke team, Coach Gordon White said the Maroon's injury list has been larger this year. Although he couldn't put his finger definitely on the cause of the increase, he did say he believed "a lot of us start scrimmage too early with opening games at such early dates.

Backfield Men Hurt.

Injuries took a severe toll in the Richmond backfield especially. Bobby Vaughan and Bill Robertson were cut down by knee injuries, Frank Tymosko was the victim of a strained leg ligament, while Dave Umansky suffered shoulder ailments. Chuck Siddall, a tackle, hurt his shoulder, and Axel Echenck, a lineman, received a cut lip in the Franklin and Marshall game. Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite said that in only one instance was the delayed whistle the cause of the injury.

Tommy Dowler, at William and Mary reported an increase, with the most harmful casualty to the ankle fracture which removed from the team the great Stumpy Bryant, triple-threat back. Al Szumigala, Red Woodward, Blake, Wallace and Livesay also wrote their names on the injury list.

Charlie Bernier, at Hampden-Sydney, had suffered more ankle sprains than normally and said the slow whistle has increased piling on.

Gus Tebell, at the University of Virginia, said there had been practically no change in the Cavaliers' style of play this year. He said the "slow whistle to permit lateral passes by tackled ball carriers may lead to piling on by opposing tacklers and eventually to more injuries, but this hasn't worked out so far."

Tech, Central Battle Today; Breaks Seen Deciding Winner

By John R. Vosburgh.

ALL ABOARD for Central Stadium. Button nup your topcoat and dust off your Sunday cheers for today they touch off the big football fireworks signalizing the thirty-fourth consecutive game between Techc and Central. Rarely, if ever, since they first met in 1902, have the embattled old rivals been more evenly matched than the two teams which step into action this afternoon.

It's virtually a case of tossing a coin to pick your winner. It will be a pair of highly confident teams backed by a couple of confident coaches which line up for the 5:30 p. m. kick-off.

In the opinion of Coach Hardy Pearce of Central the team that gets the breaks will get the victory and probably the inter-high championship. Each school has won its only inter-high start, Central having beaten Western, 19 to 0, while Tech trounced Roosevelt, 26 to 0.

"I figure that with a fair share of the breaks, we'll win," was the Pearce prediction." That is how closely matched the teams are.

Coach Hap Hardell of Tech, on the other hand, explained in his usual guarded manner that "We're confident, but not overconfident." At the same time he pointed out a fact rather difficult to get around, namely, that "Central looks better on paper."

The Central starting line-up will outweigh Tech 16 pounds to a man. That is a lot of weight for any kind of a team to concede, no matter how clever or deceptive it may be, especially to a well-coached team like Central. Central will average 175 to Tech's 159. Its line, packing plenty of more experience, as well as weight, will average 181 to Tech's 162; its backfield 164 to Tech's 154.

The 33 times the teams have met, including two games in 1911, have resulted in 16 Tech victories, 12 for Central, and 5 ties. Mindful of the 45-to-0 trouncing which Tech plastered on Central last year, the Mt. Pleasant student body is setting its hopes on a vengeful victory, displaying a generous supply of high feeling.

Fearful lest the students hold a pep rally last night, Prncipal Harvey A. Smith gave a warning from the assembly platform that there would be no game if there was a pep-fest. The principal advised saving al enthusiasm for the game and for this morning's rally in assembly. Due to the effects of a pre-Tech game rally in 1933, in which a motley number of outsiders caused no little destruction of Central property, Dr. Smith took special efforts to thwart a repetition.

Tech students, unwilling to lose their interhigh championship, likewise will hold a pre-game rally today.

Three and possibly four changes will be noticeably in the Central line-up, includnig both tackle positions. Frank Chaimson and Hugh Cramer, a couple of 185-pounders, will start in place of 200-pound Bill Mandis and 195-pound John Swank, the tackles who stated the Western game. Buddy Groome, who was kept out of the Western game by injury, will be at right guard instead of Chamberlain. Billy Vermillion may start in place of Bill Wooten in the backfield.

Hardell expects to start virtually the same team that took the field against Roosevelt, including Bill Hart, Lewis Nowlin, Bill Leister and Francis Crimmins in the backfield. Crimmins and Billy Richardson, of Central, will stage the big ground-gaining duel.

In fact, the result hinges on the pass-throwing of Hart and Lee Nichols, of Tech, the rifling right arm and fast-traveling cleats of youn5-foot, 3-inch Richardson and the powerhouse drive of stone-crusher Crimmins.

V. M. I. Harriers Face Richmond Team Today

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lexington, Va., Oct. 31.—V. M. I. cross country runners will open their season here tomorrow, when they they race the University of Richmond harriers over a 3-mile course. Last year, with Lumpkin leading the pack, the Spiders won by a single point, 27 to 28.

This season Coach Son Read has five veterans from last year's squad, which was largely made up of sophomores. They are Capt. Charlie DeCamps, Henry Read, Strother Smith, George Curfman, and Jim Ferrey.

Carnera Rated 6-5 to Beat Neusel

Little Wagering Interest Aroused in New York Battle Tonight.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—They've patched up old Primo Carnera again and will toss him back into the boxing wars against Walter Neusel, rugged German heavyweight, at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

The figth is scheduled for ten rounds. Carnera was a 6-to-5 favorite tonight, but the bout has attracted little wagering interest.

It will be the man mountain's first ring appearance since he was just about half-killed by the devastating left hooks of Joe Louis in the Detroit Negro's Eastern debut here last summer.

Neusel, who has scored victories over Jack Petersen, the British heavy; Tommy Loughran, Ray Impellittiere and King Levinsky, among others, has fought twice this year, both times against Petersen in London. He won each time by a knockout.

May Fight Louis.

If Neusel whips Carnera, he has the half-way promise that he will be Louis opponent in the Garden in March in the second of two appearances the Negro will make this winter under the combined banners of the Garden and Mike Jacobs.

Five in East Risk Clean Records

Navy Menaces Tigers, Yale Jinx Faced by Dartmouth.

Ohio State and Irish in Classic Clash; Duke Meets Tennessee.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Columbus furnishes the No. 1 spot for this Saturday's football warfare, but Notre Dame and Ohio State are not the only college teams on it.

It will be equally as hot, even if not quite so crowded, on a number of other gridirons. Most of the unbeaten squads, as well as a number of the beaten elevens still seeking top ranking will be very much "on the spot." Severe tests, for instance, face five of the East's remaining major teams with perfect records.

Princeton's impressive march will be challenged by a Navy team that is thirsting for victory after two setbacks in succession. Army, priming for Pittsburgh next week, can't afford to take thes lightest chance against Maj. Ralph Sasse's Mississippi State Sharpshooters, conquerorsof Alabama.

Dartmouth Faces Jinx.

Syracuse may be upset by Penn State's best team in years. Dartmouth faces the Yale jinx as well as a rugged Eli eleven. Temple entertains Michigan State, an aggregation more than eager to wipe out the impression left in the East by its beating at the hands of Boston College.

Minnesota may be on the Big Ten's hot spot. The Gophers entertain the boilermakers of Purdue, who may have been overrated previously or who may be tougher to take on the rebound. It all depends on how you regarded Purdue's upset by Carnegie last week.

Meanwhile the experts can't make up their minds whether unbeaten Ohio State or unbeaten Notre Dame is on the spot. The Bucks, playing at home, figure to win, but the hunch players are picking Notre Dame. Both are playing for themtremendous stakes, in prestige and ambition. Ohio regards its "Scarlet Scourge" as the best since the fa-

The Parade of the All-Stars of U. S. Colleges

Purdue—Its All-Time Honor Roll

Oliphant Heads Long List of Backfield Stars; West Is Named.

By George Trevor,
Nationally Known Football Authority.

JOHN PURDUE, beloved philanthropist whose grave encircled by a friendly hedge is located in the campus oval before University Hall, might well feel proud of these 22 Old Gold and Black football warriors. It was in 1929 that Purdue won the Big Ten Conference championship without the loss of a single game.

Such a profusion of headline backs have trod the turf of Ade Field that the picking of an all-star cast is extremely difficult—the alternates being about on a par with the regulars. Elmer Oliphant, with legs like a piano mover and a frame that might be mistaken for the Rock of Gibraltar on a foggy day, was perhaps the best known of them. His gridiron feats both here and later at Army made him a national figure.

Others with All-American tags were rugged and dependable "Pest" Welch, a thorn in the side of Big Ten opponents; Roy Horstmann, a consistent ground gainer who is now with the Boston Red Skins pro team, and Duane Purvis, of the javelin-throwing arm. Versatility was Purvis' middle name. Climax runner with the wobble of a Leon Errol in a broken field, accurate distance kicker, sure-fire on backing up the line, he was all that the term triple-threat implies.

Sooky "Cotton" Wilcox has been shifted to quarterback in order to make use of his power as a hard-hitting ball carrier. Paul Pardonner's strategy and drop-kicking prowess give him the alternate quarterback job. He missed only three tries for points after touchdown during his entire inter-collegiate career.

The Boilermakers' forward wall would have at the flanks Moss and Hutton, whose outstretched fingers were covered with glue. These boys were expert pass snatchers. A championship team must have panther-like, rangy tackles with that hungry look about their faces. Van Bibber and Sleight, of the '29 champions possessed these characteristics—and more! "Dutch" Fehring is another reason for Purdue's rise to fame.

"Long John" Miller and Claypool are legendary figures in campus history, but unfortunately they played on mediocre teams. Huge George Stears charged with the fury of a Longhorn on stampede. All-Western honors were showered on "Oakie" Miller, the center. He was the "fifth" man in the Northwestern backfield on that memorable day of 1931 at Soldiers Field, Chicago, when the Boilermakers clinched a share in the conference title by upsetting the Purple, 7-0.

Chatmoss Is Victor in 3-Field Race as Pimlico Track Opens

starting stalls and, with 11 empty places, the son of Sir Gallahad insisted on getting in with Silent Shot at one stage. Then he went in for standing on his hind legs in movie fashion, much to the discomfort of Jockey C. Eye. When the break finally came, Round Table went into the air.

Chatmoss and Silent Shot rushed out in business-like manner, but Round Table joined them as they went around the first turn. He ran head and head with Chatmoss to the far turn with Silent Shot closely following. On the start of the swing for the stretch, Round Table began to give up thec hase and Silent Shot showed signs of becoming the factor that had led to his being installed the favorite.

Pays $7 Mutuel.

However, Jockey Richards, on Chatmoss, let out another notch, and in the stretch the Veteran Chatterton horse drew away from Silent Shot.

Despite the tiny field, Chatmoss paid a $7 mutuel.

War Emblem and Venetian teamed to produce a $32.10 daily double by winning the first and third races, respectively.

War Emblem, a husky son of Big Blaze, showed his hooves to a field of 11 maiden juveniles in the first race. Silvio Coucci rushed War Emblem to the front at the break and after Redley, the favorite and a slow beginner, had challenged at the stretch turn, he drew the colt out to an easy win. Indomitable was third. The winner paid $14.20.

Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Lord Johnson defeated her husband's Ridian in the day's steeplechase event, having a margin of four lengths at the finish of the two-mile contest. Little Woman, the property of Mrs. T. W. Forbes, was third in the field of eight. Except for a brief interval soon after the start when Flying Feathers was in front, Lord Johnson set his own pace under the riding of Jockey J. Eaby. There was no mishap in the race and Lord Johnson's victory was a popular one at $4.80 mutuel.

Venetian Victorious.

Jockey Albert Robertson, riding his father's Venetian, won the third race with his mount in the role of favorite. Wise Sister was second, three lengths away, with Marge third. Venetian broke last and failed to make a move until the stretch where he went to the outside, bounded up to take the letad inside sixteenth pole and was being eased up at the finish. Venetian was a $4.70 betting proposition.

Jockey Don Meade rode Tight Wad to a smashing victory in the fourth race at a $13.10 mutuel. Grace Bunting and Chirac were the other money horses. Tight Wad, a slow beginner, circled his field entering the stretch and withstood a long drive to win in game fashion.

My Colin, at a $6.30 mutuel, captured the fifth race from Wise Duke and Our Reigh. Always a forward factor, My Colin took the lead on the swing for the stretch and held Wise Duke safe in a thrilling drive for the wire. Her Reigh, the early pacemaker, was third.

Sun Abbot took the seventh at a $6 mutuel and the day's final event went to Sir Ten, which paid $11.50.

Martinsburg Grid Game Is Postponed by Death

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 31.—The football game scheduled for Saturday of this week between Martinsburg and Hagerstown (Md.) High School elevens has been postponed indefinitely as a result of John Farra, Hagerstown quarterback, who died Sunday following an injury received in a game at Mercersburg, Pa.

Announcement of the postponement was made following funeral rites yesterday. Whether the two schools will meet at all this season is problematical.

LORD JOHNSON, fencing boldly and restrained back of FLYING FEATHERS for the first turn of the field, gained an easy lead at the ninth fence then held RIDIAN perfectly safe at the end. RIDIAN, kept in a contending position from the start, rallied strongly in the last half mile but was held safe during the closing stages. LITTLE WOMAN, reserved off the pace for the first mile, closed gamely when shaken up but could not trouble the first two. GREATOREX broke slowly and went wide most of the trip. SWANSEA went forwardly placed but could not threaten in any stages. FLYING FEATHERS had much speed for the first mile and one-half. He tired after making several bad landings.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates in chute. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:35. Off at 2:36½. Winner, R. Robertson's ch. h. (5), by Colonel Vanie—Waterfiax. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $630; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:48 1-5, 1:14 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VENETIAN, $4.70, $3.10, $2.70. WISE SISTER, $3.70. MARGE, $11.30.

VENETIAN, eased out of tight quarters in the first sixteenth and trailing his field until leaving the back stretch, swung to the outside in the last five-sixteenths, were the only pair to drive inside the final furlong and came out easily at the end. WISE SISTER, in the thick of contention in the early stages, displaced WATERSET on the turn, saved ground but could not resist the winner when challenged. MARGE worked her way up gradually and finished with good courage. VACILLATE weakened when shaken up last three-sixteenths. WATERSET was done after the first half mile. WEE PRINCESS had early foot. The others were outrun.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. The Flying Ebbony (second division). For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good and fast from stall gates in chute. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:02. Off at once. Winner, G. L. Hammon's g. (4), by Chanter—Betsy Barth. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $650; second, $180; third, $75; fourth, $25. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIGHT WAD, $13.50, $7.00, $4.20. GRACE BUNTING, $10.40, $4.50. CHIRAC, $3.10.

TIGHT WAD, going in smartly improved form, was allowed to settle in his best stride before moving into contention, swung to the outside when engaging the leaders then closing stoutly was up in the last 20 yards. GRACE BUNTING, close up in the early stages, wore CHIRAC down when straightened into the home stretch, and held on stoutly until the end. CHIRAC was hard hustled from the start, saved ground, but failed to fight under punishment. Scotch Pepper finished gamely, but was unable to threaten. TORFRIDA raced within striking distance of the leaders, but was not good enough. INSCRIPTION began tiring after the first five furlongs. HEREWARD was outrun and did not fancy the footing.

SEVENTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900; allowances. For 2-year-olds. The Park Heights. Start good from stall gates in chute. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:28. Off at 3:31. Winner, J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MY COLIN, $6.30, $3.10, $2.40. WISE DUKE, $3.40, $2.50. HER REIGH, $2.50.

MY COLIN, suited by the footing and following close to the leaders and racing on the outside, took command when midway of the turn and holding on stoutly withstood WISE DUKE. Latter resisted keen contention from HER REIGH during the early running, came again when placed to punishment in the closing furlong and outlasted HER REIGH. Latter went strongly from the beginning, saved ground and held the others safely. SARACEN made up considerable ground during the last three-sixteenths. WEDGE LAD could not reach a forward position. AROUSED showed no speed in the footing.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $2,000. The Timonium Stakes; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:55. Off at 3:56½. Winner, Mrs. M. E. Proctor 2d's b. h. (6), by Chatterton—Blue Moss. Trained by L. Evans. Net value to winner, $1,730; second, $400; third, $200. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:14, 1:40 3-5, 1:53 4-5.

CHATMOSS shook off ROUND TABLE midway of the back stretch, moved clear without effort in the last five furlongs and held away until the end. SILENT SHOT, reserved for the first six furlongs, responded nicely when shaken up but was no match for the winner. ROUND TABLE reared into the air when the start came, was sent up fast on the inside in the first three furlongs, but was done after going three-quarters of a mile.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $900; claiming. The Guynondker Purse. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:26½. Off at 4:29½. Winner, Mrs. E. Elliott's b. g. (4), by Sun Briar—Reign Nun. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUN ABBOTT, $5.80, $3.60, $3.00. DUNAIR, $4.10, $3.30. BARNEY SEXTON, $6.20.

SUN ABBOT moved up steadily after getting settled on the back stretch, swung to the outside when moving to the front in the closing furlong then came out swiftly nearing the finish. DUNAIR improved his position readily after six furlongs, but could not trouble the winner in the final drive. BARNEY SEXTON held on gamely after making a determined effort midway of the final turn. KURDAIR went in the front without effort midway of the back stretch, but failed to rally when shaken up in the last three-sixteenths. CANIMAR closed a good gap. CHANCE DAME was not good enough. RUSTIC JOE weakened early.

EIGHTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. The Madison. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates in chute. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:53. Off at 4:55. Winner, Ascot Stable's b. c. (4), by Sir Gallahad III—Ten Lee. Trained by F. E. Kraft. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48, 1:14 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SIR TEN, $11.50, $6.00, $3.60. MISS CAREFUL, $5.80, $5.10. MISS RAINBOW, $4.70.

SIR TEN secured racing room on the inside to move into a contending position when reaching the turn, wore MISS CAREFUL down when finishing on the inside and came out steadily nearing the finish. MISS CAREFUL followed CITY SLICKER closely in the first five furlongs, gained a slight lead when reaching the home stretch but could not withstand the winner. MISS RAINBOW, never far from the leaders, finished willingly when forced to a hard drive. CITY SLICKER was sent along at his best speed from the start, but was not good enough. CANTERBOY weakened after having good early speed. BRIGHT PHANTOM was outrun after the opening furlong.

Chrysler Lifts Dividend From 50 Cents to 75

Nine Months' Net $5.35 a Share Against $2.17 in 1934 Period.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 31.—Directors of the Chrysler Corporation today declared a dividend of 75 cents a share on the common stock, payable December 31 to stock of record December 2. While not designated as a regular dividend, the payment compared with a regular quarterly disbursement of 25 cents and an extra payment of the same amount in the two preceding quarters.

Net profit for the nine months ended September 30 was $23,184,457, equivalent to $5.35 on the common stock. This compares with $9,422,826 earned in the first nine months of 1934, or $2.17 per share.

Sales of the corporation's products to distributors and dealers during the first nine months of this year totaled 599,415 units, an increase of 15 per cent as compared with the 523,283 units sold in the first nine months of 1934. Dollar sales for the 1935 period were $366,711,178 as compared with $311,780,091 for the 1934 period.

B. E. Hutchinson, chairman of the finance committee, announced that Chrysler Corporation had decided today to pay off in anticipation of maturity $5,000,000 (due April 25, 1938) of the $25,000,000 loan arranged last spring with certain of its depository banks in connection with the requirement on May 1, last, of the then outstanding $30,150,500 of 6 per cent debentures of Dodge Bros., Inc.

Debt Cut to $5,000,000.

"After giving effect to [illegible] action," he said, "the corporation will have outstanding only $5,000,000 of debt other than current liabilities."

The company's nine months net earnings were the largest for any similar period in its history, except that of 1929 when the total amounted to $24,730,418.

Walter P. Chrysler, chairman of the board, in a statement to stockholders accompanying the financial report said:

"While more units were sold thus far this year than in any full year in the past, dollar volume, due to lower prices and a larger proportion of sales in the lower priced market, was not as large as it was in the best previous year, 1929, when 25 per cent fewer units were sold."

Current assets of the company as of September 30, last, including $53,793,018 cash and marketable securities, amounted to $87,644,936. Current liabilities stood at $26,989,182. At the end of September, 1934, cash and marketable securities totaled $50,718,685, with current assets of $85,744,552, and current liabilities of $31,652,342.

Chrysler's indicated net profit for the September quarter was $4,525,149, equivalent to $1.04 a share against $9,496,127, or $2.19 a share in the preceding quarter and $1,230,742, or 28 cents a share in the September quarter last year.

Chrysler stock, during the morning, rallied $3 a share to $87, but lost most of this gain following the board of directors' meeting.

The Ticker Tape

Stocks Firm in Less Active Trading; Motors the Feature; Bonds Steady.

By Carlton A. Shively

A Special Correspondent.

New York, Oct. 31.—A good month in stocks closed on the right note, and while speculative operations were subdued, most markets were able to turn in gains. Stocks were rather narrow and only fractionally better at the close of a session in which the turnover failed to reach the 2,000,000 share mark. Government bonds grew firmer. December wheat advanced a cent to 98⅛ cents a bushel.

News on the Chrysler earnings and higher dividend seemed to touch off another little spell of profit taking, but it was not greatly upsetting. Chrysler itself wavered for a while around the higher price reached in the early trading, but in the last hour it fell back about two points from its best. Some other stocks which have risen fairly rapidly fell under the spell. Western Union dropped a point or two and Steel subsided. Enough support was found on the setbacks to reassure the main body of traders. General Motors was firm on the biggest turnover of the list.

Some of the motor accessory stocks were strong for a time, following the example of leading motors in the early dealings. New tops were reached by the Kelsey-Hayes stocks. Skelly common and preferred stocks attracted attention in the oil group, with sharp gains. Stone & Webster rose more than a point in active dealings. Boeing was under pressure again, on the recent accidents. Schenley was the feature of the whisky stocks. Philip Morris rose sharply. Other tobaccos were mixed. Case recrossed the 100 line. Virginia-Carolina set a fast pace for the fertilizers.

Kennecott at New High.

Kennecott reached a new high price in a strong copper group. National Biscuit continued its progress. Some of the independent steels made large gains. Youngstown preferred jumped five points. Small gains were the rule in foods, mail orders, rubbers, rails, equipments, chemicals, oils and metals. Public utilities were calmer with small price changes.

Money markets were quiet and resigned to the higher call and time rates. The renewal of three-quarters of 1 per cent for call funds caused no stir. Foreign currencies also were dull, aside from a break in Hongkong dollars. Francs were barely steady.

Business might have regarded the reported conferences between the President and businessmen on the subject of unemployment as favorable were it not for the feeling that perhaps as much politics as a desire to change the Government's managed economy program is involved. Whatever may be the basis of figuring unemployment, the total of idle remains large, and the Government's bright promises of reduction have not done much to change matters. Few expected they would.

Employment Lags.

Industry, on the other hand, has gone forward, as the President points out, in the matter of production. Inevitably, in times of heavier expense and higher taxes, production has risen faster than employment. That has been true of every depression period, and particularly that of the early '20s.

No doubt some of the prominent business men waiting on the President will tell him some plain facts, which it is only to be hoped he will act upon. One is that business needs much less Government dictation; another is that reopening the capital market for industry, instead of trying to turn the current into Government channels, where most of it is wasted, will do more to increase employment than full time for all the alphabetical Federal agencies, public works and Government competition. He probably is tired of hearing about it, but the President nevertheless could stand another reminder or two that business and the markets took their real start from June, when the Supreme Court finished NRA.

October Trading.

October has been a good month both for the brokers and the holders of stocks. Industrial stock prices advanced 3 per cent into the highest ground in four years. The railroad list fell 4 per cent, but it had an inactive following, and toward the end of the month a strong forward movement took place in public utility securities. Turnover was a little over 46,000,000 shares for the 26 trading days, the largest for any month since February of last year. Stock volume was above 2,000,000 shares on each of 11 days. The biggest day was the $2,871,000-share session of October 21. The smallest trading was on the 9th, with 882,000 shares, the poorest since August 30. Sales of General Motors and Chrysler combined were more than 2,000,000 shares. Other stocks to lead in activity were Anaconda, Columbia Gas, General Electric, Murray, Radio, Steel, Budd, Gas, United, Hudson Graham-Paige, National Distillers, R.-K.-O., Western Union, Wilson, Commonwealth & Southern, Pure Oil, Phillips and Studebaker.

Three Utilities Plan to Issue $104,463,500

Largest Is Ohio Edison's $43,963,500 First Mortgage Bonds.

Three utility corporations have filed registrations with the Securities and Exchange Commissoin covering new issues totaling $104,463,500. All are for refunding purposes.

The Ohio Edison Co., the Ohio operating unit of the Commonwealth and Southern system, has filed for $43,963,500 first and consolidated mortgage bonds due 1965. The interest rate has not yet been determined, nor have the price to the public and the underwriting group been announced. With the proceeds, eight underlying bond issues will be retired.

The Los Angeles Gas & Electric Corporation has filed for $40,000,000 first and general mortgage bonds, series of 4's, due 1970. Proceeds will be applied chiefly to the redemption of seven outstanding issues totaling $37,182,000. It is expected that Blyth & Co., Inc., will head the group of underwriters.

The Southwestern Gas & Electric Co., of Shreveport, La., has filed for $16,000,000 first mortgage 4 per cent bonds, series D, due November 1, 1960, and $4,500,000 of 4 per cent serial debentures, series A, due serially from November 1, 1936, to November 1, 1945. Proceeds from the sale of the bonds and debentures, together with other Treasury funds will be used to redeem three issues of underlying bonds and 6,234 shares of 8 per cent cumulative preferred stock. The principal underwriters will be Brown, Harriman & Co., Inc., and Bonbright & Co., Inc., of New York, and Field, Glore & Co., of Chicago.

Excess Reserves Top 3 Billions

By the Associated Press.

Another boost in gold stocks was reported by Federal Reserve banks yesterday to have lifted excess reserves above the $3,000,000,000 mark, for the first time in history, during the week ended October 30.

The weekly condition statement of the regional institutions said an increase of $78,000,000 during the week brought the total to $5,653,000,000, an amount which the board estimated to be about $3,010,000,000 in excess of legal requirements.

Cleveland Tractor Sales Up 76 Per Cent

Cleveland, Oct. 31 (AP).—A letter to stockholders of the Cleveland Tractor Co. today from president W. King White said the company's sales in the fiscal year ended September 30 were 76 per cent greater than in the same period last year.

Net profit during that period, the letter said, totaled $289,445, compared with $77,810 in the corresponding period of last year.

Foreign Crop News Advances Wheat

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—A maximum rise of 2⅛ cents a bushel in Chicago wheat values today followed bullish Argentine crop estimates and larger Canadian export buying.

The Argentine probable wheat export surplus the coming season was authoritatively forecast as 56,000,000 to 72,000,000 bushels, against recent predictions of 88,000,000. Late indications were that upward of a million bushels of Canadian wheat had been taken today for shipment overseas.

Despite profit-taking on upturns, wheat prices here closed firm, ⅞@1¼ above yesterday's finish. December 98⅛@98¼, corn ¼@⅝ advanced, December 58¾@58⅞, oats at ⅜@½ gain, and provisions varying from 20 cents decline to a jump of 50 cents.

Clearings Here Are 29% Over Last October

Week's Total in 22 Cities Is 9.4 Per Cent Above 1934 Period.

Washington bank clearings for October, as reported yesterday by the Clearing House, were $87,251,550.41, which compares with $67,494,711.24 in October last year, an increase of $19,756,839.17. For the week ended October 30, clearings were $16,901,734.35, a decrease of $2,701,845.26, compared with the preceding week.

Total bank clearings for the first 10 months of 1935 were reported as $765,015,852.68, against a total of $605,020,786.96 in the first 10 months of 1934, a gain so far this year of $159,995,065.72.

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Bank clearings for the last week in October showed a recession from the aggregate for the week preceding, but continued above the 1934 level for the sixteenth consecutive week. The total for the 22 leading cities in the United States for the week ended Wednesday, October 30, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $4,840,431,000, against $4,424,718,000 a year ago, an increase of 9.4 per cent. For the preceding week the advance was 27.5 per cent.

New York Volume.

At New York City clearings were $3,002,759,000, a gain of 3.4 per cent over the amount reported last year, while the aggregate for centers outside of New York City of $1,837,672,000 was 20.9 per cent higher.

Settlements at all outside cities were higher in comparison with the totals for the corresponding period of last year. The largest gains were recorded at Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, Detroit, Louisville, Omaha, Dallas, Kansas City, Portland and Seattle. The figure for the last week was below that for the preceding week by $809,466,000, whereas a year ago for the same two weeks the decrease was $5,769,000.

Figures at leading centers, showing increases as compared with those of a year ago, are printed herewith; also daily bank clearings for the year to date:

Unemployment Compensation.

Full support of the District of Columbia unemployment compensation act and its provisions was pledged yesterday by the Hotel Association of Washington, D. C., Inc., whose affiliates control more than 15 per cent of the 60,000 local employes directly affected by the act.

Willard M. Kochenderfer, chairman of the committee on unemployment insurance of the Hotel Association, said that contributions from the hotels would run well beyond $100,000 during the first two years of operation. This figure was computed on a pay roll in member hotels of about $3,500,000 annually.

Pig Iron Prices Rise In Five Districts

Cleveland, Oct. 31 (AP).—The advance in pig iron prices has spread to five additional districts, Daily Metal Trade said today. It said an increase of $1 a ton will be in effect tomorrow at Cleveland, Youngstown, Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Erie, Pa. Similar increases were announced earlier this week for Chicago, Duluth, Detroit and Toledo.

The publication said sellers at points in the East and South are expected to make similar announcements within a few days.

By the Associated Press.

Loans on securities to brokers and dealers held by weekly reporting member banks in New York City amounted to $828,000,000 during the week ended October 30, representing a decrease of $4,000,000 for the week.

Chrysler News Out With Market Open

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Oct. 31.—Chrysler directors at least do not attend that school of market procedure which teaches that important dividend announcements, earnings and the like should be made only when markets are not in session, so as not to disturb prices—until the next day. The idea of holding business meetings during regular business hours and immediately making public any action that ought to be made public is a good one. Some boards of directors go to the extreme of putting anything they do into the icebox for a few days, using the excuse that they ought to send out letters to stockholders of record and letting Uncle Sam take his time about delivering to a few of them.

Bethlehem Net Profit $701,616 In 3d Quarter

In Same Period Last Year There Was a Deficit of $2,400,126.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 31.—Directors of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation today ordered a dividend of $1.75 on the preferred stock. Similar dividends were declared last June and in June, 1934. These were the only payments authorized on the senior stock since the board ordered the dividend omitted in the second quarter of 1932. Accumulated dividends on the preferred, which is entitled to $7 annually, amount to $19.25 a share.

The corporation reported net income of $701,616 for the quarter ended September 30 compared with $1,800,909 for the June quarter and deficit of $2,400,126 for the September quarter last year.

Operations of the company and its subsidiaries during the September quarter resulted in total income of $6,419,842 against $7,191,508 in the second quarter and $2,662,202 in the three months to September 30 last year.

The value of orders on hand September 30 was $63,576,027 against $49,589,474 on June 30 and $58,476,986 on September 30, 1934. Operations averaged approximately 37.8 per cent of capacity during the third quarter against 38.6 per cent in the June quarter and 22.8 per cent in the third quarter of 1934. Current operations are at approximately 46 per cent of capacity.

For nine months ended September 30, the company's net profit, as compiled from the quarterly reports, amounted to $1,895,227, after charges and taxes. This was equal to $2.03 a share on the preferred stock and compared with a profit of $139,472, or 15 cents a share on the preferred, in the similar 1934 period.

Eugene G. Grace, president of the corporation said:

"The fourth quarter for Bethlehem should be substantially better than the third. Personally, I think the outlook for the rest of the quarter is rather promising."

Asked if it was likely that operations during the fourth period would rise above the present rate, Mr. Grace replied, "I doubt if we will go above that rate, but that is much better than the third quarter."

RFC Makes Profit On 32 Bond Issues

Thirty-two issues of bonds purchased by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation from PWA and offered by the corporation at public sale on October 29 have been awarded to the highest bidders. The face amount of the bonds sold was $3,863,300 and the sale price $4,036,493.07 a net premium of $173,193.07 representing an average of 104½.

In the 14 sales conducted by the RFC of securities purchased by it from PWA, bonds having par values of $95,680,900 have been sold at a premium of $2,994,010.24 representing an average price of over 103⅛.

A local firm, Brown, Goodwyn & Co., bought $60,000 Alexandria, Va., 4 per cent curb and gutter bonds at $1,060.093 per $1,000. A block of $15,000 Mayor and Councilmen of Frostburg, Md., 4 per cent water improvement bonds was purchased by the Southern Ohio Savings Bank & Trust Co., of Cincinnati.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Hartford Is Surprised — By Harry J. Tuthill

Oh it's nothing.... nothing.
Nothing? You practically passed out when you saw the writing on that will. You know something about this, don't you old man?
George, why are you trying to talk Mr. Oakdale into saying he, too, is an "owner" of that pocketbook?
But mother, he did recognize.
Absolutely! You admit that, don't you Hartford?
I...I mean....I can't...say anything now... that is.....I'm so.. ah, do you mind if I open a window?
The window's open. Here, Hartford, pull yourself together and take another look at....
George! The idea! Waving that paper in our faces. Here, give it to me. the pocketbook, too.
Ah...I think I'll have to go now, please.

Obey Red Lights, Ambulances Told

Van Duzer Warns Drivers of Emergency Vehicles.

A letter warning Emergency Hospital that their ambulances must stop running through red traffic lights while answering calls was sent to B. B. Sandridge, superintendent of the hospital, by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

Approved by Police Chief Ernest W. Brown, the letter stated traffic regulations permit Emergency vehicles to cross on a red light only after coming to a complete stop.

Van Duzer declared that while the few minutes saved in running through a light might save the life of one person it endangers the lives of many. Many collisions have resulted from Emergency vehicles passing lights and it must be stopped, he said.
